Fire Safety First

They learned that it takes just four minutes for a house to become fully engulfed with flames. And that is why the firefighters say it is so important that families have an evacuation plan in case of a fire. Oct. 7-13 was Fire Prevention Week in Kentucky. Events at local elementary, middle and high schools have been held throughout October and will continue next month. Above, Tony Grider, an engineer with the Campbellsville Fire Department, talks to students from Campbellsville Elementary School during their visit to the fire department. At left, Tynisha Richerson, 8, a third grader at Campbellsville Elementary, tries on a firefighter's helmet during a visit to the Campbellsville Fire Department. Below, Firefighter Kevin Pike shows students the parts of his uniform. See more photos on Page A12, and online at www.cknj.com.

Local family offers fun on the farm for fall

Farm has corn maze, hayrides, petting zoo, pumpkins and more for Halloween-themed fun

LESLIE MOORE
lmoore@cknj.com

Families searching for a place to have some Halloween-themed fun this year will not have to look far. Heavenly Haven Farm, owned and operated by Delaina and John "John Boy" Russell, offers a corn maze, pumpkin patch, hayride and petting zoo and all right here in Taylor County.

"Owning my own farm is something I'd always wanted to do growing up, and I really wanted my kids to grow up on a farm," Delaina said.

After her daughter, Haiden, now four, was born, Delaina said she wanted to stay at home and decided to quit her job as a veterinarian's assistant. However, she said she was used to staying busy and quickly became bored. That is when she and her husband decided to look into purchasing some farmland.

In 2009, the Russells purchased a 147-acre farm at an auction. After a few months of cleaning up, Heavenly Haven Farm opened to the public that September.

Delaina said one of her continued goals is to make the farm a safe and welcoming place for school field trips.

She has made an effort to visit local schools and introduce her-

Some say more fine dining options needed

'The restaurant was very successful and certainly hit a need in Campbellsville. There's nothing like that here now.'

When Café Bonin shuttered its doors at 128 E. Main St. earlier this August, foodies say it left a void in downtown's upscale-casual dining scene. It was the lone, locally-owned place that offered moderately priced dinner specials ranging from $12-$13. It also hosted live jazz and other music on some weekends.

Outside commitments and family obligations forced the owners to close the Cajun/Creole restaurant after five years of operation. The future of the former restaurant is now uncertain.

"I miss it," said Dr. Marlene Richardson, who co-owned and operated Café Bonin with her husband, Jeff. "The restaurant was very successful and cer-

Five school board seats up for grabs in General Election

Candidates talk about important issues in education

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

Five school board seats are up for grabs this year, with winners to be announced after voters make their decisions on Nov. 6.

Three of the races — two of which are the only of the five with opposition — are for spots on the Taylor County School Board.

Incumbent Jim Cheatham has filed to once again serve as the representative of the 3rd District. He faces no opposition.

Three people want the 4th District seat. Incumbent Tony Davis faces Doyle Berry and Benjamin Bright to keep his post.

In the 5th District race, incumbent Lillian Clark faces newcomers Joey Wasson and Ronnie Harden.

Two of the five Campbellsville School Board seats are up for grabs. Current members Pat Hall and Barkley Taylor have filed to keep their spots. They face no opposition.

The News-Journal mailed candidate questionnaires to all candidates in races with opposition. All candidates in the races for the 4th and 5th District Taylor County School Board seats returned the questionnaires. Their answers are printed below.

The questionnaires are also posted along with this story online at www.cknj.com.

School board members are charged with discussing and making decisions about various school issues, from funding and personnel to much more.

Doyle Berry

Doyle Berry lives with his wife, Joyce, and son, Cody, at 750 Wilson Creek Road. He lists his education as Jeffersonville High School, Indiana Fire School at Indiana University Southeast, Memphis Fire School, Ivy Tech College and the APPA Institute for Facilities Management. He is a certified master firefighter.

Berry has worked in fire services for 20 years and at Ivy Tech College for eight years on a full- and part-time basis.

He wrote that he is running for public office because children's education is their passport to the future and is the Board members' responsibility.

"How we pay for it is my concern," he wrote.

The three most important issues facing schools today, he wrote, are federal and state budget cuts, rapidly changing technology and educational requirements and getting students prepared for college and to achieve their educational goals.

self to principals and teachers so she can let them know the educational, as well as recreational, opportunities that Heavenly Haven Farm offers children.

"I thought to myself, 'Why would they bring kids to my farm if they didn't know anything about it?'"

Delaina said this has paid off because the farm has gradually received more visits from schools and several more classes are scheduled to come this month.

"We do a lot of interactive things for the kids - show them how to milk a cow and how a pumpkin grows," Delaina said. "We want everyone to have a good time."

She said a lot of children are surprised when they learn that there are many more types of pumpkins than just the standard jack-o-lantern variety.

According to Delaina, there are more than 100 varieties of pumpkins. She said "knucklehead" pumpkins, easily identified by their gnarly rinds that appear to be covered in wart-like growths, have become a crowd favorite.

The Russells plant the pumpkins in June and July. They did not grow any giant pumpkins this year because they have to be kept inside and planted early so they will have enough time to grow.

"I do have the seeds for them, but we just didn't get around to it this time," Delaina said. "But we would like to maybe do that next year so people can come and take pictures in front of them. To help in the process of selecting the perfect pumpkin, visitors get to ride on a wagon to the four-acre pumpkin patch.

Haiden Russell, 4, plays on a hay wagon on Heavenly Haven Farm in Taylor County. The wagon takes farm visitors to the pumpkin patch. Haiden is the daughter of Heavenly Haven owners John "John Boy" and Delaina Russell.

To test their navigation skills, visitors can go through the five-acre corn maze. Delaina said that it can take people anywhere from 20 minutes to an hour to find their way out.

"People haven't got so lost to the point where they're calling me, but several people have come out through the entrance," Delaina said.

For groups with young children, guided tours are available. She added that the corn maze is wide enough to accommodate wheelchairs. Delaina said that after the farm closes for the season on Nov. 3, the corn will be harvested and then fed to the animals that live on the farm.

"We have to have this corn. If we don't have it, we're not going to be able to feed all the animals," she said.

The farm is home to several goats, pigs, emus and even miniature horses. Delaina said that all of the animals are friendly and love attention.

She said her family was fortunate to not have encountered any major challenges with the farm, although there was an incident the first year that turned out to be a learning experience.

"The sheep got out [of the fence] and ate all the corn, so we improvised and made a round hay-bale maze," Delaina said. "It worked out well."

She said farming is hard work, but they have always made sure to get everything done and have no regrets about starting the farm. She is also glad that Haiden and her son, Lucas, 15 months, are getting to grow up on the farm.

"You have no idea how much work it is until you get into it, but I'm not complaining about the labor at all because it is so rewarding for people to come out and thank you for having something like this so close to home."

SHELTER NEWS

This stray shepherd mix needs a new home. He is about 3 years old.

Taylor County Animal Shelter has a variety of cats and dogs wanting to be a part of someone's family.

The shelter is open 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays and is located off KY 210, just past Walmart. Appointments are available after hours. The shelter houses animals from Taylor, Green, Casey, Russell and LaRue counties.

Adoption fee is $100, which includes a microchip with 30 days of insurance, rabies and parvo shots, deworming and a spay or neuter voucher. The owner is responsible for taking their new pet to a vet to be spayed or neutered. For more information, call 465-7651, fax 469-4191, email ascontrol@taylorcounty.us or visit www.taylorcounty.us/county-government/animal-shelter.html.

Missing Pets

The Taylor County Animal Shelter asks that anyone who needs to report a missing pet call the shelter at 465-7651. If the pet is missing after hours, shelter staff will be able to help the following day.

Pet IDs

The Taylor County Animal Shelter encourages pet owners to make sure their pets are properly identified with at least a name and phone number.

Pets without tags may not be found. Pets that are lost or stolen are less likely to be returned to their owners without any identification.

tainly hit a need in Campbellsville. There's nothing like that here now."

The Richardsons eventually plan to sell the 80-seat, 2,000 square-foot restaurant as a turn-key operation, but finding the right buyer to fill the local niche could be a challenge.

"It needs to have an owner/operator — someone that can be hands-on," Richardson said.

While she said the historic building has piqued interest from a few potential buyers, some believe the initial capital investment, coupled with overhead costs, staffing issues and the sluggish economy, could deter potential restaurateurs from re-launching the site as an upscale-casual restaurant.

Campbellsville also is "centrally isolated," said Tracy Phillips Gibson, daughter of Pat and Randall Phillips and a Taylor County native who graduated with a culinary-arts degree from Sullivan University in Louisville.

"I feel that location plays a part in the local dining scene," she said.

Gibson left the area about 12 years ago and now works as a chef at Bell House Restaurant in Shelbyville — a small town about 28 miles west of Louisville, whose dining scene draws from the proximity of its larger metro neighbor.

Unfortunately, Campbellsville isn't accessible by an interstate or parkway, Gibson said, and it's also 80 miles from any major metropolitan area.

While Campbellsville University and nearby Green River Lake draw thousands to the area annually — the spending habits of those outsiders can be fickle and largely dependent on tourist and academic seasons or short-run cultural events.

"So, you have to rely on surrounding counties to be successful in restaurants," Gibson said. "Some people will drive for good food. But for some, it's not worth it."

If the price-to-quality balance isn't right, many likely will opt for a chain, or seek less-expensive fast-food options.

There's nothing wrong with that, Gibson said, but "you do a disservice (to children) by not exposing them to different foods and different methods of preparation. Kids don't establish table manners. They don't know how to behave in a place without distracting energy."

In its five-year stint, Café Bonin managed to achieve regional appeal, attracting a diverse crowd of diners who are now forced to drive to Elizabethtown or Bardstown for a similar dining experience.

"We had a great clientele — wonderful locals. A lot of people would come from out of town," Richardson said.

Any future downtown restaurant must recapture that crowd, she said.

It must also do something else: satisfy the appetites of locals.

"People in this area are hungry for fresh, healthy alternatives to the frozen stuff that everybody else is serving," Richardson said. "We prided ourselves on the highest quality of food."

LOCAL BRIEF

Habitat searching for families who want to own their own home

Campbellsville/Taylor County Habitat for Humanity is searching for families who are interested in owning their own home.

Families must meet certain income and debt requirements to qualify for a home.

Families interested can get an application brochure at Green River Ministries on Clem Haskins Boulevard. Habitat staff members will notify potential applicants of an orientation meeting, which will be scheduled in the next few weeks.

Be aware of signs of child abuse

Child abuse is an unspeakable injustice that doesn't discriminate against race, religion or socioeconomic status. In recent years, Kentucky and Indiana have ranked among the worst states in the nation for deaths and near-deaths resulting from child physical abuse.

Each year in Kentucky there are more than 14,000 substantiated reports of abuse and neglect. The result is that Kentucky averages 30 to 40 child deaths each year involving abuse and neglect, with another 30 to 60 near fatalities annually. Also, children who survive physical abuse often are left with lifetime debilitating injuries. Indiana has had similar challenges in recent years. Equally as heartbreaking to know is that child abuse is completely preventable.

It is critical that we band together, as health care professionals, educators, lawmakers, business leaders and community members, to eliminate this horrible blight on our region. So what can you do?

First, be aware of tips and steps to staying in control to prevent abuse.

Second, know how to report suspected child abuse. Federal and state laws require that you report any suspected child abuse.

Third, know where to find more information about resources and child abuse prevention. The Partnership to Eliminate Child Abuse, Prevent Child Abuse Kentucky, Prevent Child Abuse Indiana, and the Childhelp National Child Abuse Hotline provide a wealth of helpful information and support resources.

By working together, we can make a true difference to protect our children and their families by eliminating child abuse forever.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

On Jan. 2, 2013, the Taylor County school district will experience federal budget cuts of 8 percent or more unless Congress intervenes.

These budget cuts will be the result of the Budget Control Act of 2011, which mandates reductions in education funding, as well as funding for almost every federal program. The overall impact will be $1.2 trillion over the next 10 years. For school districts across the nation it will mean more than a $4 billion cut in Fiscal Year 2013. When we estimate the cuts in federal funding for our own school district, we know that the impact will be devastating. And these federal cuts will come at a time when our own state and local budgets are unable to adequately fund our education programs here in Taylor County. For example, the Taylor County school district has made great progress in raising graduation rates, increasing proficiency in math and reading, closing achievement gaps through tutoring and other intervention, and increasing course offerings in science, technology, engineering and math. This success in our own community should not be jeopardized because our members in Congress could not or would not agree on a funding reduction plan that would preserve investments in education, knowing its importance to our economic recovery.

For the Taylor County School District, a budget cut in federal funding would mean larger class sizes, fewer course offerings, less access to intervention programs, summer school and after-school programs, less extracurricular activities, and teacher staff layoffs. Given the budget cuts and adjustments our local community has made in recent years, there is simply very little, if anything else, left to cut. Any further cuts in education funding will adversely affect the quality of our education programs and could leave many students unable to successfully compete for college or careers that would provide a standard of living that our children so richly deserve.

For example, some of the courses that could be eliminated would include the 21st century program and our family and youth service center program. It would cause us to have to cut programs that build character education, drug and alcohol programs and programs that keep students from dropping out of school.

Now is not the time for these harsh cuts. Education must be protected for our children and to improve our economy. If these across-the-board budget cuts to education occur, then Congress will have failed! That is why we are urging our own members of Congress, Representative John "Bam" Carney and senators Mitch McConnell and Rand Paul to stop the Budget Control Act's drastic cuts to education that would affect our students and communities, and to protect education as an investment critical to economic stability and American competitiveness. The clock is ticking, and Jan. 2, 2013, will be here soon.

Community papers still going strong

can be reached at 465-8111 or lmoore@cknj.com.

In recent years, there has been a lot of speculation about the future of journalism, specifically, the printed newspaper.

News media sites such as the New York Times and Yahoo! have brought journalism to a new level. Their content is constantly updated and is invaluable for staying informed on the current events and issues affecting our country. This instant access to news has led many to believe that the demise of local community newspapers, like the News-Journal, is inevitable.

As a recent graduate of Lindsey Wilson College's journalism program, and also as a new reporter at the News-Journal, the future of print journalism is obviously very important to me.

While the Internet has dramatically changed the way we receive our news, this does not mean that newspapers are becoming obsolete. Instead, the public's increased awareness of news on the national level has led to a greater understanding of the importance of being informed of the events and issues affecting our own communities.

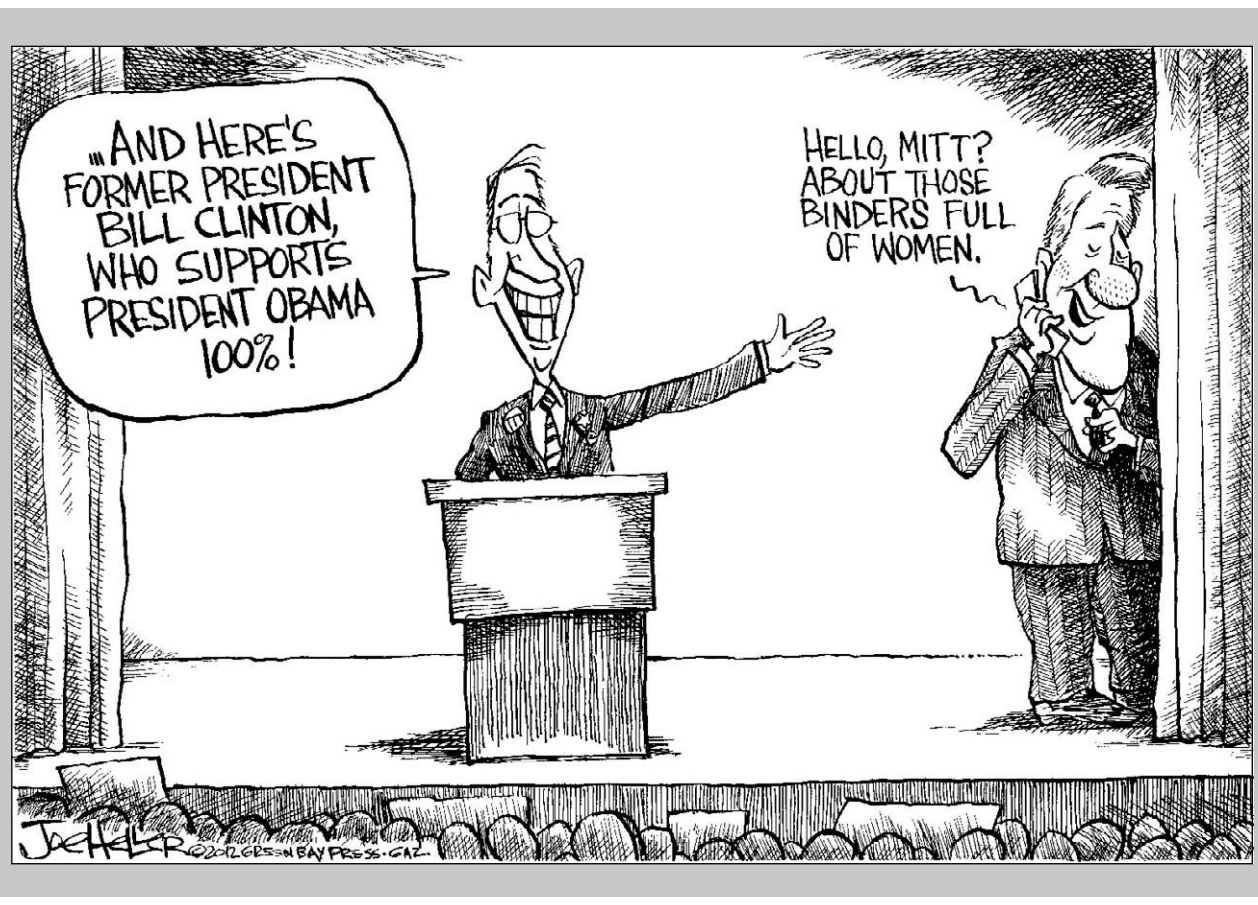

Coverage of local government meetings, court cases, progress of schools and other localized issues will not be found on national-based news media websites because their purpose is to deliver news on the national level. To cover all of the news that pertains only to each community would be impossible, and would also go against their objective, which is to attract as many readers per news item as possible. Local news, as vital to a community as it is, is primarily of interest to residents of a community.

Therefore, if one wants to read community news, they will have to look within their community to get it. This is where newspapers like the News-Journal come in. Within our pages, you will find birth announcements, obituaries, coverage of local government, updates on court cases, upcoming events, and stories about you. If newspapers ceased to exist, so would all of these.

Another faulty assumption often made about newspapers is that only "older" adults read them. However, if the number of my 20-something peers who pointed out to me that there is no such thing as a tobacco hatchet after reading my recent article about tobacco is any indication, I will conclude that newspapers are being read by eyes of all ages.

From students in classrooms all the way up to grandparents who scan the education page looking for scrapbook-worthy photos of their grandchildren, newspapers offer something for everyone.

So until the public stops caring about the actions of local law enforcement, school administrators and elected representatives, newspapers are here to stay.

GUEST COLUMN

Near-death experiences

can be reached via e-mail at drdavid@davidbwhitlock.com

Thousands of people have related their stories of near-death experiences (NDEs), perhaps the most popular in recent years being told by a pastor (Don Piper, 90 Minutes in Heaven, 2004), and by a child (Colton Burpo, Heaven is for Real, 2010), neither of which, though fascinating in their own right, is likely, given the occupation of the first and the age of the second, to convince those skeptical of such experiences.

But now we encounter the NDEs of Dr. Mary C. Neal (To Heaven and Back: A Doctor's Extraordinary Account of Her Death, Heaven, Angels, and Life Again, 2011) and Dr. Eben Alexander (Proof of Heaven, A Neurosurgeon's Journey into the Afterlife, 2012). Neal is a spinal surgeon; Alexander is a neurosurgeon who has taught at Harvard Medical School and other universities.

Neal drowned while on a trip to Chile; Alexander spent seven days in a coma after being infected with rare E. coli bacteria that penetrated his cerebrospinal fluid and shut down the part of his brain, the neocortex, which controls thought and emotions.

Neal's account of her actual encounter with death and entrance into heaven is brief. Most of her book is about how the experience affected her life, particularly the manner in which it enabled her to cope with the tragic death of her son years after her NDE. Indeed, while in heaven, Neal is told she must return to earth to help her family deal with that loss.

Although Neal was a professing Christian before her NDE (she relates instances when she believes God intervened in her life), at the time of her NDE she had relegated God to the back seat of her life. But all that changed after she drowned. As she approached a great hall in heaven, she felt her soul being pulled toward an entry as she was "physically absorbed" in radiance, "feeling the pure, complete, and utterly unconditional absolute love that emanated from the hall." Now she wants others to see that it doesn't take a NDE like hers to see that events are not coincidental, that God has a plan for each of us, and that there really is life after death.

Alexander, whose book is to be released this week, describes his pre-NDE spiritual life as that of a "faithful Christian," who was more so "in name than in actual belief." His skepticism of NDEs changed after he emerged from his seven day coma: "That dimension, in rough outline, the same one described by countless subjects of near-death experiences and other mystical states, is there.

It exists, and what I saw and learned there has placed me quite literally in a new world: a world where we are much more than our brains and bodies, and where death is not the end of consciousness, but rather a chapter in a vast, and incalculably positive, journey." Like Neal, Alexander was told in heaven that he would have to return to earth.

Because he didn't want his experience to be affected by prior research on NEDs, Alexander first detailed his own encounter with the afterlife before thoroughly studying the subject. Alexander is convinced that consciousness exists outside the brain, that the soul is not dependent on the brain, and that "the reductive materialistic model is inadequate to explain what we know about consciousness now."

Both authors are passionate about sharing the reality they describe as heaven. Is it for real? Most definitely it is. But I say that with eyes of faith; I am a believer.

It's for that very reason that I'm also skeptical. While I hope for the best, I doubt that either book will change the mind of the entrenched atheist or seasoned skeptic. Already one scientist has challenged Alexander. "Even if I granted that his brain had been shut down — it's not shut down now. And there is absolutely no way for him to establish (or even to subjectively know) that he didn't have his experience as his brain was coming back online. End of debate, as far as I'm concerned," said Dr. Sam Harris, in Skeptiko.com.

We shouldn't be surprised, should we? Didn't Jesus himself warn his listeners, "'If they won't listen to Moses and the prophets, they won't listen even if someone rises from the dead'" (Luke 16:31)?

NDEs can be powerful pointers to another dimension, yet a dimension that in the final analysis must still be received by faith, a faith placed in the one who created that place, one who having risen from a real death experience, promised to return again so his followers can join him in that place.

That place is more real than this place.

After all, it's heaven, I believe.

LIBRARY NEWS

Library has 'Pete the Cat' books

I am always looking for the perfect book to read to children each month. The last few months I have discovered an author right up there with Eric Carle. His name is Eric Litwin and he writes "Pete the Cat" books.

With a catchy song in each book and a loveable character, these books are winners. The illustrator, James Dean, has lively, bold and joyous illustrations in the books. Each book has a very good moral, which is don't sweat the small stuff and just keep singing your song.

The first one is called "Pete the Cat: I Love My White Shoes." Pete the Cat strolls down the street singing, "I love my white shoes, I love my white shoes, I love my white shoes."

Then he steps into a huge pile of strawberries that turn his white sneakers into red sneakers. Does he cry? "Goodness, no!" He just changes his song, "I love my red shoes, I love my red shoes, I love my red shoes."

He proceeds to step in a mound of blueberries and then a puddle of mud, each incident changing his sneakers to a new hue. Pete takes it all in stride. After stepping into a bucket of water, he notices that his sneakers are not only white again, but also wet.

The moral of the story is to keep going no matter what happens to you in life, just keep singing your song because it is all good. This is a great book to use for teaching colors.

The next one is "Pete the Cat: Rocking in my School Shoes." In this book, Pete is eating in his school shoes, reading in his school shoes, playing in his school shoes and so on. This story rocks!

The third one is called "Pete the Cat and His Four Groovy Buttons." Pete loves his four groovy buttons, but oh no, they start popping off. Does Pete cry? Goodness, no. He just keeps singing his song.

Even when his last button pops off, he looks down and discovers he still has his belly button. This book is a great book about number recognition and simple subtraction. The bright colors and repetitive story have children wanting to join right in and start singing Pete's song.

The newest book is "Pete the Cat Saves Christmas." Pete saves the day for an ailing Santa. Although the task is hard, Pete understands that the spirit of giving is what Christmas is all about. So Pete sings in this book "Give it your all, give it your all. At Christmas we give, so give it your all." This is great advice for little folks and big folks as well.

The author of these books,Litwin is a guitar-strumming, song-singing, banjo-picking, tale-telling, songwriting, national-award-winning, music- producing, fun, folksy type of guy. He loves to blend song and story together, and is inspired by the depth and simplicity of folk songs and folktales. He is a popular performer, delighting thousands of children and families each year.

You can go on YouTube and hear the author and illustrator reading each one of these books. They are very catchy and the children really get into the song and story. I love to watch these videos. There is also a website, www.harpercollinschildrens.com/petethecat, where you can download the book, songs and book activities.

Great books like these make my job so much easier, and it is so much fun having books you can really put some great expression in when you read them. I love seeing the children enjoy such good books. These books would make a great Christmas gift to a young child. You can even get a Pete the Cat stuffed animal to go with the book. Happy reading.

Campbellsville native to release new book

'Anonymity' to hit stores in January

As major cities begin their homeless counts in January, a new novel by a former Campbellsville resident will show the vivid reality of millions of young people with no place to call home. "Anonymity," by national bestselling author Janna McMahan, will detail the daily life of one girl alone on the streets.

McMahan was influenced to write "Anonymity" when she saw a girl whose face was a mask of intricate tattoos.

"It was shocking and I carried her image in my mind for years. I kept asking myself why she would do that to herself," McMahan said.

"As a writer, I was even more troubled by the question of who would do that to a child. It was a mystery to me, so removed from my own life that I had to write about it."

An idea for a story that would do the girl justice came to McMahan and she began to research.

"Gutter punks, street rats, worms are all terms used to describe the young homeless, but I found these kids to be capable and clever. They have to exist in an adult world with no resources and still keep their humanity," McMahan said.

"Readers tell me that they look at homeless people differently after 'Anonymity,' how off their preconceived notions were. I know I came away from writing the story with a different perspective. It was a challenge, a dark story in many ways, but just like life, there are light moments, too. There has to be levity for people to enjoy a book and for me to stay sane as an author."

"Anonymity" is about Lorelei, a young runaway who works her way down the California coast and across the southwest with a band of travelers like herself. She lands in Austin, a hip city known to travelers for a lively music scene, artsy alternative lifestyle and welcoming youth services. Lorelei meets Emily, a bartender who befriends her. Being anonymous is how Lorelei hides from her past, but Emily's attention exposes her young friend and ends up calling forth the very danger from which Lorelei was trying to escape.

MCMAHAN

"Lorelei's problems are very adult. She not only has to meet basic needs like food and shelter, but she has to deal with issues like sex, drugs and people who want to take advantage of her," McMahan said.

"She has serious trust issues, and even well-meaning people have a hard time breaking through her tough exterior. The facial tats are to warn people away. Her survival instincts are good, but she let's her guard down to Emily and that's when things go bad fast."

While doing research for her book, McMahan turned to LifeWorks, a youth homeless shelter in Austin.

"The folks at LifeWorks were amazingly helpful. They showed me where the kids hang out, explained how services worked, shared studies and experiences. These kids are not just runaways. The majority of them simply aged out of the foster care system. "These kids truly have no place to call home."

Koehler Books will donate a portion of the proceeds from the sale of Anonymity to LifeWorks.

Publisher John Koehler said, "They do vital outreach and help America's young homeless transition to a better, self-sufficient life."

"Anonymity" will be released Jan. 1.

McMahan is also the author of "Undertow," "Calling Home" and "The Ocean Inside."

Appliance raffle to help students earn iPads

Drawing set for Jan. 4 hoops game

Roger Cook, superintendent of Taylor County Schools, left, poses with Maurice Coppock, owner of Coppock Appliance and Electronics in Campbellsville. Coppock has partnered with Frigidaire to give a set of appliances to benefit local students as they lease iPads for use in Taylor County classrooms.

Coppock Appliance and Electronics in Campbellsville and Frigidaire are partnering with Taylor County Schools to give students access to technology to enable every student to achieve their goals. Coppock has donated a full kitchen appliance set to Taylor County Schools to be raffled with proceeds helping with the purchase of iPads and enabling students to utilize the devices both in and out of school.

Students can raise money toward their lease of an iPad through the sale of raffle tickets. Tickets are $10 each and have a $25 off coupon on items costing more than $399 at Coppocks. The winner will receive a full kitchen appliance set valued at $3,500 from Coppock's, which includes a refrigerator, stove, microwave and dishwasher. The drawing will be Jan. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Campbellsville vs. Taylor County basketball game at Taylor County High School. Tickets are also available at Chandler's Office Supply, The Green Room, Tucker Diamonds and Gold and Mitchell's Men's Wear. The kitchen appliance set can be seen at the Taylor County Bank Green River Plaza branch. For more information, call 465-5371 or www.taylor.kyschools.us.

"Scary" Investment Moves to Avoid

A presidential election is almost upon us. But if you have young children or grandchildren, you know what's really important this week is Butterfingers, not ballots, and Pop Rocks, not the popular vote.

Yes, it's Halloween time again, which means you'll see plenty of witches and vampires scurrying around. You'll no doubt find these characters more amusing than frightening, but you don't have to look far to find things that are a bit more alarming — such as these scary investment moves:

• Paying too much attention to the headlines — Some headlines may seem unnerving, but don't abandon your investment strategy just because the news of the day appears grim.

• Chasing "hot" investments — You can get "hot" investment tips from the talking heads on television, your next-door neighbor or just about anybody. But even if the tip was accurate at one point, by the time you get to a "hot" investment, it may already be cooling down. And, even more importantly, it simply may not be appropriate for your individual risk tolerance and goals.

• Ignoring different types of investment risk — Most investors are aware of the risk of losing principal when investing in stocks. But if you shun stocks totally in favor of perceived "risk-free" investments, you'd be making a mistake because all investments carry some type of risk. For example, with fixed-income investments, including CDs and bonds, one risk you will encounter is inflation risk — the risk that your investment will provide you with returns that won't even keep up with inflation and will, therefore, result in a loss of purchasing power over time. Another risk you will incur is interest-rate risk — the risk that new bonds will be issued at higher rates, driving down the price of your bonds. Bonds also carry the risk of default, though you can reduce this risk by sticking with bonds that receive the highest ratings from independent rating agencies.

• Failing to diversify — If you only own one type of investment, and a market downturn affects that particular asset class, your portfolio could take a big hit. But by spreading your dollars among an array of vehicles, such as stocks, bonds and government securities, you can reduce the effects of volatility on your holdings. (Keep in mind, though, that diversification cannot guarantee profits or protect against loss.)

• Focusing on the short term — If you concentrate too much on short-term results, you may react to a piece of bad news, or to a period of extreme price gyrations, by making investment moves that are counterproductive to your goals. Furthermore, if you're constantly seeking to instantaneously turn around losses, you'll likely rack up fees, commissions and possibly taxes. Avoid all these hassles by keeping your eyes on the future and sticking to a long-term, personalized strategy.

You can't always make the perfect investment choices. But by steering clear of the "scary" moves described above, you can work toward your long-term goals and hopefully avoid some of the more fearsome results.

Join the Winning Team!

We have all the bases covered with experience, diversity and knowledge. On First Base is John McLean, John is both a banker and a poultry farmer. He never counts his chickens before they hatch, but he is great with the numbers. He has served four years with Taylor County Soil Conservation Board.

On Second Base, we have Barry Smith. Barry is both farmer and small business owner. He keeps the team charged up! He has served ten years on the Taylor Soil Conservation Board.

On Third Base is David Cowherd. David spend his previous career keeping the peace. These days, you can find him peacefully farming right here on the family farm. He spent the past eight years serving on the Taylor County Soil Conservation Board and the past four on the Kentucky State Soil Conservation Board as Area 7 Representative.

And covering Home Plate is Doug Martin. Doug has played many positions throughout his career including: Forestry, Air Force, Dairy Equipment sales and service and farming. He has spend the past 50 years serving on the Taylor County Soil Conservation Board.

As you can see, we have a well rounded team; young blood and plenty of experience, new ideas and proven knowledge, all are ready, willing, and eager to work for the landowners of Taylor County.

Please vote for each member of our winning Taylor County Soil Conservation Team!

Paid for by the candidates, Doug Martin, David Cowherd, Barry Smith & John McLean.

COMMUNITY NOTES

Library patron identification numbers updated

Taylor County Public Library has recently updated its patron identifications.

Those who download items from the library's Overdrive System should be sure to update their identification numbers.

For a new patron identification number or more information, call the library at 465-2562.

Adult education center offers TABE, GED testing

Taylor County Adult Learning Center provides TABE testing every Monday at 1 p.m. and every Friday at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. The TABE test is the first step to obtaining a GED. Many local employers also use the TABE test as a screening tool for employment opportunities. For more information, call 465-7736.

Anti-drug Coalition teaming up to host Meth Watch program

Campbellsville/Taylor County Anti-Drug Coalition, Central KY-ASAP Local Board and Adanta Regional Prevention Center are teaming up to launch a Meth Watch Program in Taylor County.

According to the coalition, methamphetamine production and use is a serious and growing problem in Kentucky.

More than 1,000 meth labs were seized in Kentucky last year and it is projected this year that the number will dramatically increase.

The projected growth and dangerousness of illegal manufacture of meth is why many communities are taking a proactive approach to curb residents buying legal products for illegal use. The coalition says that retailers are the prime target for "meth cooks" who might steal or buy large quantities of ingredients used to make meth.

Retailers participating in the Meth Watch program will place the products where they can be easily monitored and strategically post Meth Watch signs and tags on shelves, doors, windows and near cash registers. They might impose purchase limits to prevent high volume sales.

Retailers participating in the Meth Watch program have reported safer stores, better customer relations, increased employee awareness and improved communications with law enforcement. Many stores in Kentucky and other states that participate in Meth Watch also report a decrease in thefts.

For more information about Meth Watch, contact the Adanta Regional Prevention Center at (606) 679-9425 or the coalition at 789-1925.

Habitat searching for families who want to own their own home

Campbellsville/Taylor County Habitat for Humanity is searching for families who are interested in owning their own home.

Families must meet certain income and debt requirements to qualify for a home. Families must also demonstrate a housing need as well as a willingness to partner with local habitat staff before and during construction if they are chosen as a partner family.

Families interested can get an application brochure at Green River Ministries on Clem Haskins Boulevard. After completing preliminary worksheets, they should mail the information to begin the application process.

Habitat staff members will notify potential applicants of an orientation meeting, which will be scheduled in the next few weeks.

Scouts receive Commanding General coins for participation

Local group Boy Scouts of America Troop 616 visited Ft. Knox on Oct. 12-14 to participate in Patriot Games.

Patriot Games is a council-wide encampment. The event had been hosted in 2003, 2005 and 2007. After that, organizers took a break from hosting the event because of the high level of commitment from our armed forces.

In 2007, more than 8,000 Scouts, leaders and visitors enjoyed a weekend of camping, activities, displays, challenge courses, archery, fishing, Patton Museum tours, military vehicles, aircraft and much more.

The chairman of the event was retired Major General Bill Barron. He is an Eagle Scout who has just completed a 40-year career with the United States Army.

The event is designed to offer something to scouts of all ages, including Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Venture Scouts.

Camping on Friday night at Keyes Park was followed by a day of activities and fun and another night of camping before the event concluded on Sunday morning.

This year, the boys of Troop 616 were asked to be the color guard for the opening ceremonies in front of a crowd estimated at 8,000 or more.

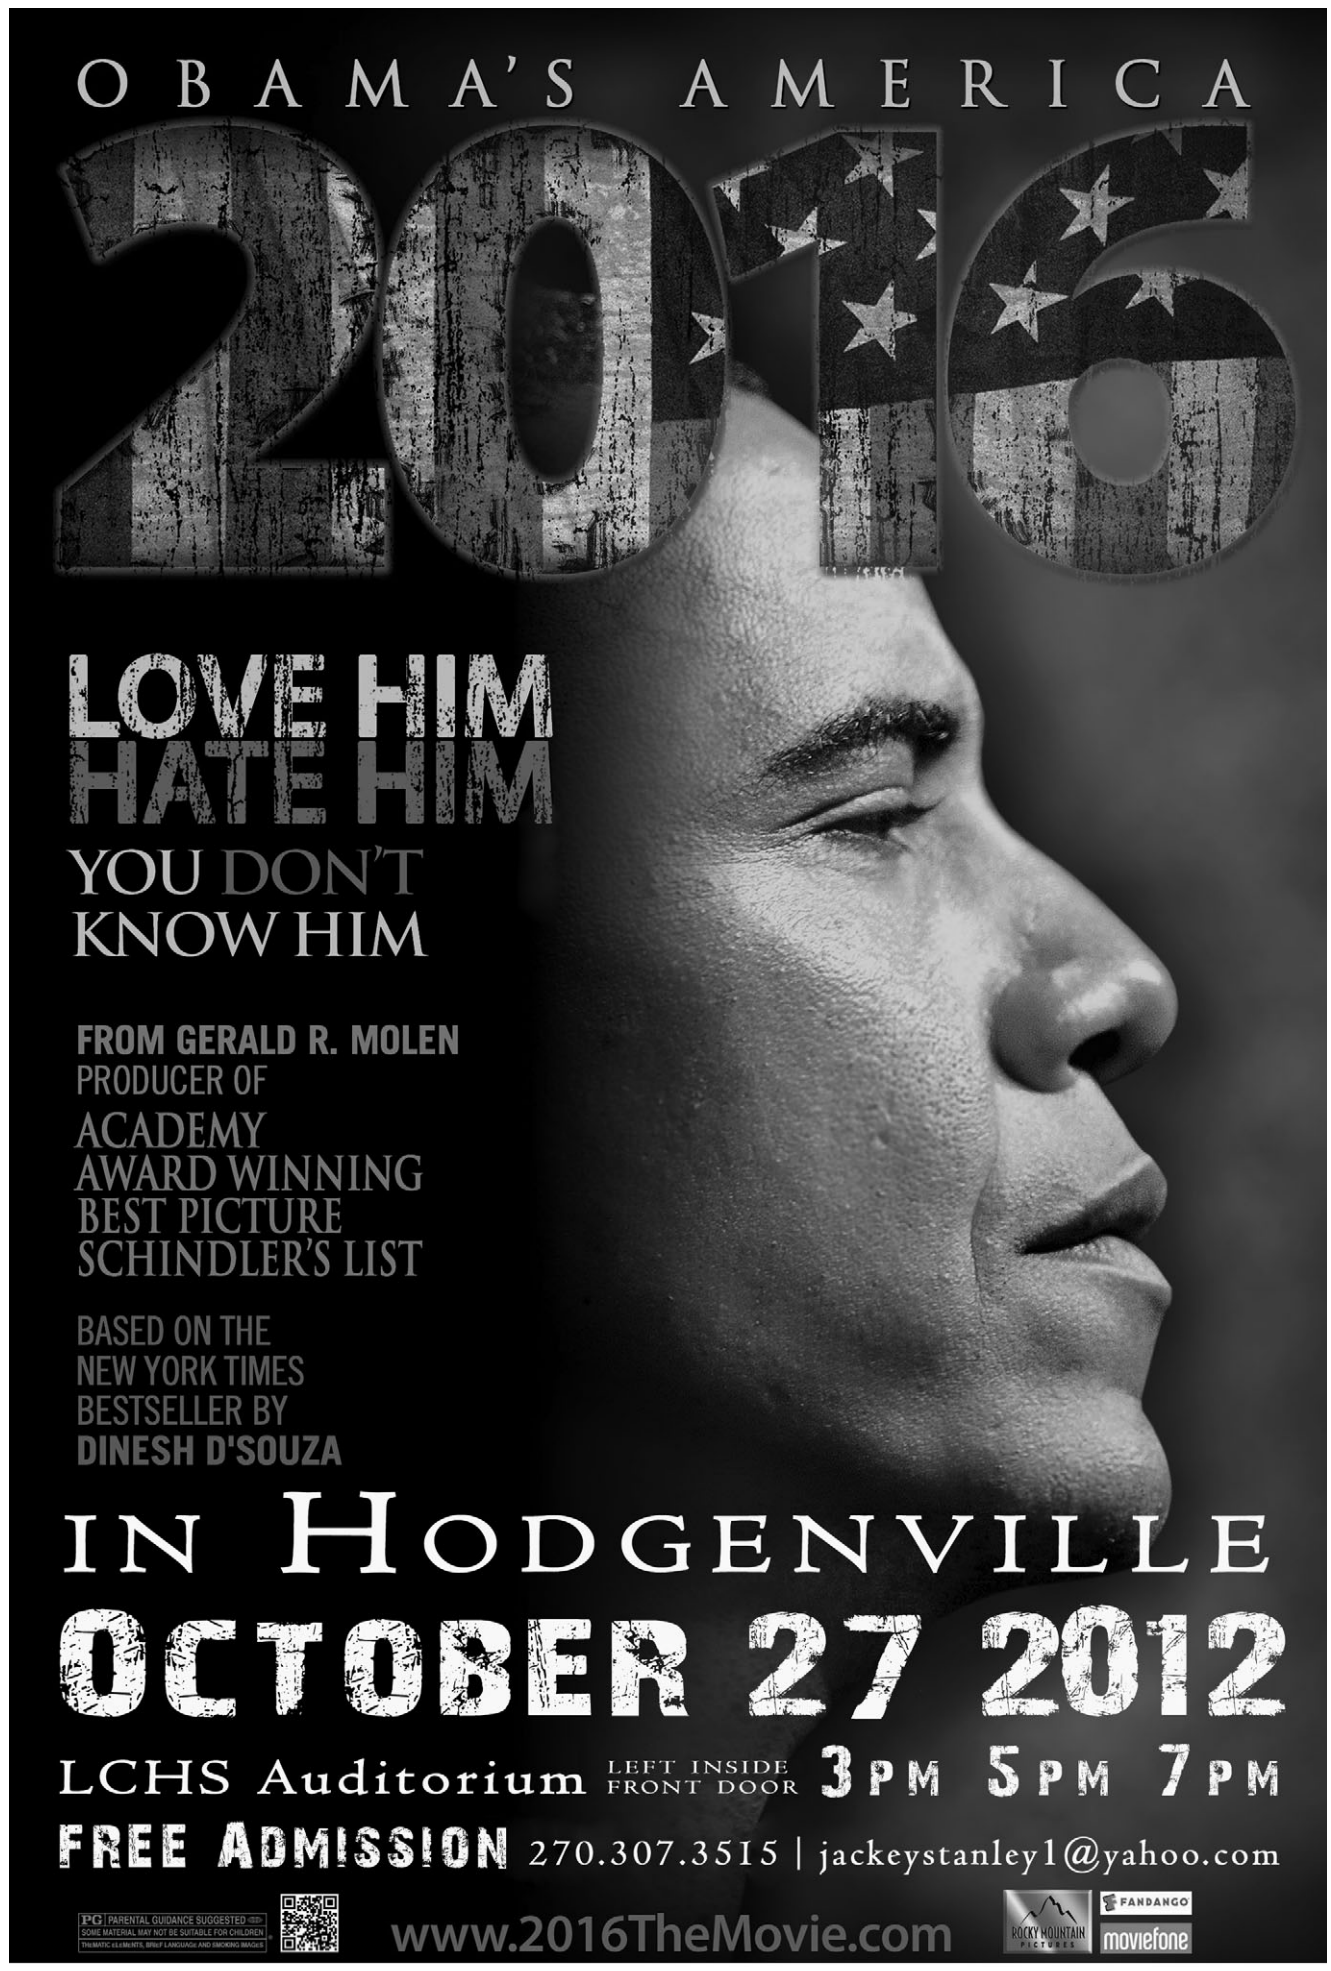

They carried in and displayed the American flag and their Troop 616 flag while several dignitaries spoke.

The Post Commander of Ft. Knox, Major General Jefforey A. Smith, was the primary speaker at the opening, and afterward he greeted the members of the color guard.

While speaking to the boys he presented each of them a Commanding General coin, which is a special honor not afforded to any other scouts who attended the weekend.

SUSIE SKAGGS

CIRCUIT CLERK

30+ YEARS OF LEGAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE EXPERIENCE

QUALIFIED • COMMITTED • DEPENDABLE

WWW.SUSIE4CIRCUITCLERK.COM

An efficient Circuit Clerk's office is vital to the court system. The Circuit Clerk's office is responsible for managing critical records for court such as criminal cases, juvenile cases, domestic violence cases, adoptions and divorces. Many of these cases involve life changing matters.

It is an important office with big responsibilities. My work background in the law firm has prepared me to carry out the duties and responsibilities of the office.

For the last thirty-five years I've served the clients of the law firm. I'm now ready to serve the people of Taylor County as your next Circuit Court Clerk.

• Service – Expanded hours including Thursdays until 6:00 p.m. and open on the 2nd and 3rd Saturdays of each month from 8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

• Work Ethic – I'll be a "hands-on" working clerk that will work with all the current staff to provide prompt and courteous service as well as efficient and professional service.

The Right Experience! – The Right Choice!

Paid for by Campaign to Elect Susie Skaggs Circuit Clerk, Anna Humphress, Treasurer, 931 Stone Quarry Road, Campbellsville, KY 42718

What Are The Signs?

Any great Otolaryngologist (ENT) would know the signs.

What's an Otolaryngologist? Besides being tough to pronounce, an Otolaryngologist is a doctor that deals with the anatomy, function, and diseases of the ear, nose and throat. At Surgical Specialists we are fortunate to have Dr. Robert Wilson, a board certified Otolaryngologist who will provide the best in personalized adult and pediatric care for any afflictions affecting the neck and head.

Dr. Wilson provides both medical care and surgical treatment options for ENT disorders such as common nasal problems, sinus and throat disorders, hearing loss, ear infections, snoring and sleep apnea. He provides the latest techniques and post-operative care for ENT patients.

As the leaves turn color and fall to the ground they nourish the soil as they decay and they protect the tree's dormant roots from winter's chill. Though the leafless branches may seem sad, we know it is part of God's plan. We do not question His wisdom since we know summer will come again.

By the same token, we must have the faith to accept the sad times that we are helpless to change, realizing that God's plan for our lives is at work even if we can't see it. Experience has taught us that happy times will come again. Life will change, but God remains steady. Praise Him in worship this week.

PROVERBS 22:6

School: Five board seats up for grabs in General Election

BERRY

Berry said he believes he is the best candidate for election.

"If elected, you can count on me to make fiscally sound investments in our kids' future, based on common sense values."

Benjamin Bright

BRIGHT

Benjamin Bright, 26, is married to Samantha Bright. His parents are Ricky Bright and Stella Bright. His brother is Adam Bright, who is married to Normaida Bright.

He graduated from Taylor County High School in 2004 and has completed two years of studies at Campbellsville University.

Bright has worked for four and a half years at Hendrickson Axle as a robot operator and welder and for about 10 years as a heavy equipment operator for Brightway Excavating.

He wrote that he decided to run for public office because he believes he can make a difference.

"I want to have a hand in making important decisions that change our community and our children's future," he wrote. "I want to represent the area I live in and work with the people to improve the students' education and school experience."

The three most important issues facing schools today are making sure that teachers, curriculum and technology are all current.

"I feel we cannot afford to not always strive to make our children's education the best that it possibly can be."

The second issue, he wrote, is the budget.

"With these uncertain and changing times, getting the funding to run and maintain our schools is getting harder by the day. This means we just have to strive to spend the money smarter and more efficiently."

Lastly, Bright wrote that he believes the renovation of the schools is another important issue.

"I know this is a highly controversial issue with many people in the Taylor County School District. Many people believe that we should renovate all the schools and build a new high school. Some believe that we should just build a new elementary school.

"We need to work together and do what we can now with what money we have, instead of spending money trying to figure out what to do. I believe if we all work together, we can come up with a solution that everybody can get on board with."

Bright wrote that he believes he is the best candidate because the Board needs some new perspectives.

"Some people may see my age as a disadvantage. However, I see it as one of my greatest assets. For what I may lack in experience, I can make up for in passion and enthusiasm.

"If elected, I will stand up and fight to make sure that the voices of the voters in the 4th District are heard. We all have the common goal of making sure that our children have the best possible education and future we can give them."

Tony Davis

DAVIS

Incumbent Tony Davis, 63, is married to DeeDee Davis. They have a son, Jordan, and a daughter, Christy, and two grandchildren, Haley and Gavin Vetter.

Davis lists his education as Taylor County High School.

He worked at Parker Kalon for 22 years, leaving as a manufacturing control manager, and at Cox Interior for 18 years, ending as a purchasing manager. Davis has been retired for two years.

Davis wrote that he decided to run for public office because he has always enjoyed working with youth and wants to continue working to make sure the Taylor County School District is one of the best in the state.

The three most important issues facing schools, Davis wrote, are replacing the Taylor County Elementary School building, overcrowding at Taylor County middle and high schools and funding issues for the two previously mentioned issues as well as public education cuts.

Davis said he believes he should be re-elected because of his experience.

"Nineteen years of experience, I feel, gives me the knowledge to continue working towards the issues facing our schools."

He wrote that he has two years' experience as regional chairman of the Kentucky School Board Association and served two years on the advisory committee for the Commissioner of Education.

"One of the most important things is having helped with the formation of performance based education in the Taylor County School System. With the success of this program, Taylor County has been recognized throughout the state as a leader in education for our youth.

"Test scores are up, ACT scores are up and our students have the opportunity to receive an excellent education."

Lillian Clark

CLARK

Lillian Clark is married to Dr. Robert Clark and has four children.

She received a bachelor's degree from Belmont University, a master's degree from Vanderbilt University and a Rank 1 from Western Kentucky University.

She has 30 years experience in education, working as an English teacher and in guidance. Clark has served on the Board for 18 years.

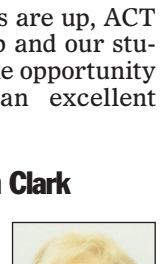

She wrote that she decided to run for public office because she wants to continue working to build new schools.

"I believe I have the background to help guide Taylor County Schools to higher levels of success."

The three most important issues facing schools today are facilities that need replacing, improving the rigor of classroom instruction to meet newly revised standards and keeping technology updated for students and staff members.

Clark said there are three reasons she should be re-elected, including her experience, educational background and commitment to school improvement.

Joey Wasson

WASSON

Joey Wasson, 41, is married to Crissy Wasson and has three children, including a daughter, Kim, 21, who graduated from Taylor County High School, a son, Devan, 12, who is a seventh-grader at Taylor County Middle School, and Isabella, 3. His mother is Janet Hancock.

Wasson graduated from Campbellsville University in 1999 with a bachelor's of science degree in teaching English and political science.

He wrote that he has worked for five years as an educator, has spent 15 years in the technology industry and was honorably discharged from the United States Navy in 1993.

Wasson wrote that he is running for public office because he believes he can contribute to the Board.

"I believe I can contribute a great deal of experience and expertise to the school system that is responsible for the education of my children and yours. I also believe each of us has an obligation to serve our community when we are able."

The three most important issues facing schools today are finding a permanent solution for building issues at Taylor County Elementary School.

"This building is an unacceptable learning environment for our elementary students. As a community, we must find a way to solve this problem within the parameters of a constricted budget."

Wasson wrote that also important is academic success, which is a never-ending challenge facing every school system.

"Our school system has been blessed with educators who have made amazing academic progress. However, we can never become complacent because academic success for all students should always be our driving force."

And for the third important issue, he wrote, "finding a way to keep educators in the classroom instead of the unemployment line has been a huge issue for our district."

Wasson wrote that he believes he is the best candidate because of his experience.

"I have many years of experience as an educator and as an educational technology professional. My vast experience with technical construction will allow me to see things others might not as we move forward with new construction plans in our district.

"Also, many parents and school employees know they can freely voice their concerns to me because I have been involved in education and athletics in this community for several years. I want every parent, student, teacher and administrator to know I will listen to them and be their voice on the school board."

Ronnie Harden

HARDEN

Ronnie Harden, 49, is married to Debbie Harden, who is employed at Kroger Pharmacy. He has a daughter, Shelby, who is a junior at Taylor County High School.

He graduated from TCHS in 1981 and retired from the Taylor County School System after 22 years of service. He has worked at Forcht Bank since 1995.

Harden wrote that he decided to run for public office because he wants to serve the students and staff and "represent the people of the 5th School Board District in the best way I possibly can."

The three most important issues facing schools, he said, are the state not giving schools enough funding, class sizes being too large with more individualized instruction needed to prepare students for college and to become contributing members of society and finding ways to motivate parents into becoming more involved with their children's education.

Harden wrote that he believes he is the best candidate because he has lived and worked in Taylor County his entire life.

"During my tenure at Taylor County Schools, I was in contact with the students and staff daily. At my present job with Forcht Bank, I work in the community every day.

"I hear and understand what the community and the people of the 5th School Board District want and expect from their school system and I am willing to make the tough decisions on their behalf."

This is the fourth in a series of seven stories about the races with opposition on the General Election ballot on Nov. 6.

CU close, but loses 28-23 at Cumberland

Tigers visit No. 10 Cumberlands Saturday

Chris Megginson
CU Sports Information

A Top 25 upset was Campbellsville University's for the taking Saturday, but three late Tiger turnovers inside Bulldog territory allowed No. 25 Cumberland University to hold on for a 28-23 win in its second night game in program history.

Campbellsville posted its most offense of the season with 377 yards, including a career-high 259 yards passing by quarterback Bryan Parnes.

The Tigers turned the ball over on downs at the Cumberland 9, lost a fumble at the 45 and threw an interception at the 41 on the final three drives of the game.

"I thought we played well against a very good team," CU head coach Perry Thomas said. "It's one of those things. That black cloud has hung over us all year where things that can go wrong do.

"You can't fault our guys' effort. They continue to fight really hard and really believe and come to work every day.

"It's easy for our guys to give up on this year, and they haven't done that. One of the reasons is they are a good group of young men, but the other reason is we've been so close."

The loss is the third this season by seven points or less for the Tigers (2-6, 1-3 MSC West).

Both teams combined for 140 yards on 10 plays to each score a touchdown in the first five minutes of play. With 9:53 to play in the opening quarter, all was even, 7-7, after a 31-yard touchdown pass from Parnes to Demytreus Gipson.

The Tigers trailed 14-7 and were held three-and-out, but Eric Krivitsky pinned the Bulldogs deep with Rico Dickerson downing the ball at the Cumberland 3 where a high snap bounced off the cross bar for a Tiger safety, 14-9.

CU trailed 21-9 at half-time, but out-scored the Bulldogs 14-7 in the second half starting with an 18-yard touchdown pass from Parnes to Steph'Von Haynes for Haynes' first score of his CU career, and a 28-touchdown pass from Parnes to Demetric Ray with 10 seconds left in the third quarter.

Neither team scored in the fourth quarter.

Regular-season girls' wrap-up

Campbellsville Middle School swept a girls' basketball tripleheader from Taylor County on Tuesday night at Campbellsville High School. Brenna Wethington, top left, hit three fourth-quarter free throws in the CMS eight-graders' 33-22 triumph. Caylie Blair and Beth Veach, top right, square off as the Lady Cardinals are in a pressing situation. Nena Barnett, at left, had 12 points in the 29-27 Lady Eagle win and 16 points in the nightcap. Kiyah Barnett and Sydnee Beard, below left, ready for a missed throw. Sydney Tucker goes against Cassie Pipes in the seventh-grad encounter while, just below, Kenzie Carney runs the TCMS seventh-grade offense. Caroline McMahan, bottom, plays out front in the Lady Eagles' eighth-grade zone. Linescores are in the Scorecard on page B2. Many of the players and CMS cheerleaders wore pink for Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Prep Football Scouting Reports

Campbellsville at Fort Knox (Friday at 7:30)

Fort Knox (1-8), coached by former Campbellsville player Shawn Thompson, owns only a 27-6 home victory over Hart County during week two and will miss out on the play-offs.

There are no common foes between the two sets of Eagles.

After last year's 25-24 triumph at home over Fort Knox, Campbellsville, 3-6 on this season, trails the overall series 9-8.

For a second consecutive season, CHS will host Pineville in a first-round home play-off encounter next Friday.

Hart County at Taylor County (Friday at 7:30)

Taylor County (5-4) is trying to finish above .500 for the first time since an 8-4 campaign in 2008.

The Cardinals, who did not qualify for post-season play for a third straight year, won last year 41-39 in Munfordville and claim a 24-5 advantage in the series.

Senior backs Lamar Morrison (No. 29), Chris Gaither (No. 2) and Chris Bradley (No. 12) have all rushed for over 500 yards and combined for over 20 touchdowns for the Raiders while freshman quarterback Josh Shoulders (No. 41) has thrown for over 300.

Senior Darius Barbour (No. 15) is the top Hart County receiver.

The Raiders (4-5), who finished fourth in their district and will play at Fort Campbell next week in the play-offs, have scored over 40 points twice — a 45-6 home win over Breckinridge County in their opener and a 48-14 triumph last week at Jackson County.

Taylor County High Cardinals' nine-game statistics (5-4)

Rushing (408-2,438) — Daulton Turpin 111-950, Dylan Bright 102-617, Josh Gilmer 53-281, Alex Gupton 27-205, Hunter Christie 63-177, Garrett Haggerty 14-77, Ryan Cox 18-47, Cooper Hall 11-44, Taylor Spoon 1-16, Jarrett Benningfield 4-13, Chase Turner 4-11.

Passing (29-63-5 for 632, 7 TDs) — Hunter Christie 28-59-3 for 600 (7 TDs), Chase Turner 1-4-2 for 32.

Receiving — Daulton Turpin 8-144, Josh Gilmer 6-128, Connor Fair 5-47, Marquis Johnson 2-14, Logan Perry 1-57, Garrett Haggerty 1-32, Colton Harris 1-5.

Scoring (257 points) — Daulton Turpin 88, Dylan Bright 56, Hunter Christie 30, Josh Gilmer 12, Aaron Gray 15, Jack Miller 10, Cody Bast 8, Ryan Cox 8, Logan Perry 6, Alex Gupton 6, Garrett Haggerty 6, Brandon Williams 6, Connor Fair 6.

Deer tree stands require safe use

While deer hunting is a relatively safe sport compared to others, there still are too many injuries — most which could be easily avoided.

To the surprise of many, most deer hunting injuries are not caused by guns or bows. They result from accidents caused by improper use of deer stands.

There aren't a lot of statistics on the subject, and it may be a bit hard to believe, but if viewed over a person's hunting lifetime, a hunter has one chance in three of receiving a serious injury from tree stand use.

For as long as I've been aware of deer hunting with tree stands. the possible dangers associated with them have been in the back of my mind. However a number of years ago, the danger became impressed on my mind.

While visiting a hospital patient a number of years ago, a nurse became aware of my outdoor writing. She asked me if I had time to visit a couple of patients on another wing. "I know they would appreciate it," she said. "Both are hunters."

The nurse explained both were hospitalized due to unrelated accidents. Both had fallen from tree stands and both were at least temporarily, partially paralyzed from their falls.

Both hunters were upbeat about their situations, but both also wanted people to know about the dangers of tree stands, if proper caution isn't used.

Already this fall, I'm aware of at least three serious falls in Kentuckiana, and read that a Pennsylvania man died in a mishap.

It is difficult to know just how many hunters are injured every year. Not all accidents are reported, and not everyone who falls required medical attention. And, not all tree stand accidents are recorded as a category at hospitals. There also is no national collection of data.

A nearly 20-year-old study by a deer hunting magazine found that 37 percent of tree stand hunters some time will fall from their stand, and about three percent will suffer some sort of crippling injury.

Three-quarters of the accidents happen while the hunter is climbing up or down on the stand.

Also especially telling was that most hunters injured were not wearing a safety harness or vest.

Whenever a person uses a tree stand, they should be familiar with the equipment and associated safety. Most commercial stands come with instructions, and there also is a quick safety test on-line at www.huntercourse.com/treestandsafety. Also, Kalkomey Enterprises has an on-line hunter education course which contains a section on use of tree stands. (http://my.hunter-ed.com/studyGuide/index/course/201016). Check it out.

Here are some safety items recommended by the Pennsylvania Game Commission:

- Do not set up in a dead or dying tree because those are the unsafe trees. If the bark is already slipping off it, don't set up there.
- Read the directions before you put the tree stand together. Manufacturers know best about how to put your new piece of equipment together, make sure to follow their guidelines.
- Inspect the stand before you sit in it, especially, if it's been sitting out all year and the season has just started. The straps should all still be secure and the nuts and bolts should be tight.
- Pay attention to the weather. If it's too windy that day, it might not be a safe day to go hunting.
- Use a tow rope to haul up gear once you yourself are safe and secure in the stand.
- And last, but surely not least, wear a harness, the ultimate lifesaver. If you think a harness may be costly, think of the cost of medical care and time spent away from work.

And, the following are a couple rules, I would add:

- Always hunt with a plan, and if possible, with a buddy. Let others know your exact hunting location, when you plan to return and, who you are hunting with.
- Always carry emergency signal devices, such as a cell phone, whistle, walkie-talkie, signal flare and flashlight on your person at all times and within reach, even when you are suspended in your tree stand.

Kenseth wins wild Kansas race

Matt Kenseth survived a minor wreck to win Sunday's Sprint Cup race at the recently repaved Kansas Speedway.

He led 77 laps of the 267-lap race that had 14 cautions, plus several other wrecks that did not bring out the yellow flag.

"We had such a good car today," said Kenseth, who is leaving Roush Racing for Joe Gibbs Racing at the end of the season. "It had so much power on the restarts. I lost it one time when I spun and backed it into the wall, but the team was able to get me back to the front, and that's all I needed."

Martin Truex Jr. finished second, followed by Paul Menard, Kasey Kahne, Tony Stewart, Clint Bowyer, Regan Smith, Brad Keselowski, Jimmie Johnson, and Jeff Gordon.

The speeds were fast and the competition among drivers was tough, but the toughest obstacle they faced was the freshly paved track itself.

"Everything is on edge out there," said Kyle Busch, who was involved in a wreck and finished 31st. "I was a little loose, and (Ryan) Newman came up and bumped me. I got wrecked, and so did he. But he'll get another one before the year's out."

Jimmie Johnson's team received an unexpected blow during lap 137, when Johnson spun and hit into the outside wall. His team patched the car up, and he was able to finish ninth.

"I definitely got a pretty tore up race car," he said. "I really don't know how the team was able to get me back up to speed."

Johnson now trails Chase leader, Brad Keselowski by seven points with four races remaining.

Keselowski, who had problems with the new asphalt during practice, started 25th and finished eighth.

"I don't know how to explain this race today," said Keselowski. "It was caution after caution. The only way to describe it was a tough race, and I feel like we dodged a bullet."

Danica Patrick attempted to wreck Landon Cassill, driver of the No. 83 on lap 160. But instead of putting him into the wall, her No. 7 slid up the track, and banged into the wall.

Cassill continued to race while Patrick's car was towed to the garage.

"Yes, I got into him," she said in a post-race interview. "He has bumped me, and criticized me for just being on the track. I got tired of it. That's being honest." Patrick finished 32nd.

NASCAR considering a truck dirt race

NASCAR is considering adding a dirt race at Eldora Speedway to its 2013 Truck Series schedule.

The track is owned by Tony Stewart.

Stewart has been asking NASCAR for several years to consider a race at the half-mile track in Rossburg, Ohio.

NASCAR officials declined to address specifically whether Eldora was under consideration for a truck race, but the series is looking at potential venues it hasn't been to before.

"We've made several site visits over the past few months to look at possible future venues for our Nationwide and Camping World Truck Series," spokesman Kerry Tharp said. "We expect the 2013 schedules for both of those series to be finished up and released within the next couple of weeks."

•In other racing news, NASCAR said the maximum field for the Nationwide Series will be reduced from 43 to 40 cars in 2013. The Sprint Cup Series will remain at 43 cars, with the Truck Series remaining at 36.

A new qualifying rule was introduced in which the 36 fastest cars will make the race on speed, followed by the next six highest-ranking cars in owner's points and one spot for the most recent eligible past champion.

It is a move away from the top-35 rule that was put in place in 2005, guaranteeing the top-35 in owner's points made the field.

"This is a big win for our fans," NASCAR vice president for competition Robin Pemberton said in a release. "They'll see the fastest cars earn their starting spots."

The order of qualifying will move to a random draw instead of being based on practice times.

Provisional positions in the Cup and Nationwide series will be based on previous owner's points for the first three races instead of the first five, as it has been in the past.

•Dale Earnhardt Jr., who has been sidelined with a concussion for the past two weeks, is scheduled to race this weekend at Martinsville.

Earnhardt has absolutely nothing to gain and a lot to lose by rushing back to action. He is out of this year's Chase, and should give his body the extra time it might need to completely heal.

Imagine the danger of suffering another concussion in one of the final four races of the season.

He snapped his four-year winless streak by winning at Michigan in June. He bounced back to become a championship contender, and has shown the drive and commitment this season that many of his fans and critics wanted to see. He should sit out the remaining four races, for his sake.

Weekend racing: The Trucks and Cup teams will be at the .526-mile Martinsville Speedway. The Nationwide teams have an off week.

Saturday — Camping World Trucks Kroger 200 (race 19 of 22) at 1:30 p.m. on SPEED.

Sunday — Sprint Cup Tums 500 (race 33 of 36) at 1 p.m. on ESPN.

Racing Trivia Question: Where is Cup driver Jamie McMurray's hometown?

Last week's question: Who drove Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s car in the Charlotte race? Answer: It was Regan Smith.

CAMPBELLSVILLE UNIVERSITY FALL ATHLETICS

Tigers third, Lady Tigers sixth at St. Louis Fall Classic

First-year Tigers Brent Pierce and Dylan Ford both posted their best collegiate times Saturday to finish in the top 15 and lead Campbellsville University to a third-place finish in the St. Louis Fall Cross Country Classic 8K at Forrest Park. The Lady Tigers finished sixth of nine.

Pierce shaved 43 seconds off his time from last week at the Fast Cats Classic in Owensboro to place fifth in 26:31 while Ford dropped 36 seconds and finished 12th in a time of 27:12.

"I'm very happy with how we performed today. It was great weather, and a great racing day," CU coach Hilary Cebulko said. "This will set us up well for two weeks of training before the conference meet. We raced great today!"

For the men, Pierce and Ford were joined in the race's top 25 by Andrew Simmons (17th, 27:25.4), Bradley Harris (21st, 27:52.8) and Kyle Howdyshell (24th, 28:07.4). Michael Dowell (28th, 28:15) and Joey Hartlage (31st, 28:28.7) were the other two racing in the Tigers' Top 7. Harris and Dowell also ran a season-best time.

Tiger runners not listed in CU's seven that posted season-best times were Wade Harris (28:49), William Pearson (30:17) and Luke Camp (30:55).

For the women, the Lady Tigers were led by season-best times from Sarah Johnson and Rebekah Southwood, who both finished in the Top 25. Johnson finished 22nd in a time of 20:33.7, while Southwood was one spot behind her in 20:39.0. The other season-best marks for CU were from senior Natasha Janes (35th, 21:40.5) and freshman Mallory Vest (38th, 22:11.1).

Freshman Shelby Courtney finished with the third-best time for CU at 21:06.7. She was followed by Summer Rines at 21:22.2. The other Lady Tiger runner was Maggie Calvert, who ran the 5K race in 22:43.1.

Washington University, an NCAA Division III school in St. Louis, won the women's race and finished runner-up in the men's race to Columbia College (Mo.)

CU returns to action Nov. 3 at the Mid-South Conference Championships in Rio Grande, Ohio.

Tigers' streak ends at No. 1 Rio Grande

Campbellsville University's eight-game unbeaten streak in men's soccer was snapped on the road at top-ranked University of Rio Grande Saturday night.

The RedStorm locked up at least a share of the Mid-South Conference regular season championship with a 5-0 shutout of the Tigers.

Prior to the game, CU had won seven of its last eight, including four straight shutout wins.

"It was a tough game against a very good team. We will learn and be better because of this game," said CU coach Adam Preston.

Oliver Hewitt-Fisher led the RedStorm's offense with a six-point night, assisting two goals and scoring two others. Hewitt-Fisher's first assist came in the 14th minute for the eventual game-winning goal by Brodie Steigerwald. He followed with his first goal in the 42nd minute and added Rio's final goal in the 81st minute. Caio Cruz scored in the 49th and 58th minutes for Rio Grande.

Richard Isberner and Craig Davies had the assists on Hewitt-Fisher's goals.

Pontus Yngve and Roraigh Yearwood were the only Tigers to collect shots on goal in the game, one in each half.

Max Malachiyev had four saves per half for Campbellsville, recording his fourth loss of the season. Two of CU's four losses have come against the NAIA's top two teams, No. 1 Rio Grande and No. 2 Lindsey Wilson College. The other two were to No. 20 Martin Methodist College and an early misstep against Asbury University.

Campbellsville (11-4-1, 6-2 MSC) locked up a first round home game in the MSC Tournament and will travel to the University of the Cumberlands on Saturday (4:00) to decide third-place for the MSC regular season.

Women's soccer moves into third

Kailene Allis scored her first career goal to punctuate a 3-0 Lady Tiger Soccer win over Rio Grande Saturday evening, moving CU into third place in the MSC.

"It was good to get another shutout, especially to a conference team," coach Thom Jones said. "I'm happy that we finished strong and scored three goals in the second half."

Allis, a freshman from Norton, Ohio, scored in the 85th minute after Alex Shafer and Toria Alsip each netted their fourth goals of the season to stake the Lady Tigers to a 2-0 lead.

Shafer, a sophomore from LaGrange, unknotted a scoreless game in the 63rd minute and Alsip, a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, booted in an insurance score in the 73rd minute. Alsip'ss goal was unassisted, but Shafer got an assist from Bailey McDonough and Allis from Jessica Ralph.

Shafer picked up Mid-South Conference Player of the Week honors for her three-goal effort last week.

The win moves CU into sole possession of third place in the MSC at 6-2 — all shutout victories with Brandie Hagerman in net. Campbellsville is 8-6-1 overall.

Campbellsville out-shot Rio 21-3 with 11 CU shots being on goal. Hagerman had three saves and Allison Keeney of Rio had eight.

Rio bumps volleyball out of second place

Lady Tiger Volleyball's Jekyll and Hyde season took yet another twist Saturday as CU was knocked out of second place in the MSC with a five-set loss to Rio Grande.

The 2-1 weekend in the MSC Crossover Tournament wasn't good enough for Campbellsville to keep pace with Lindsey Wilson, which went 3-0 on the weekend to stake itself firmly in second. Campbellsville holds third place over Rio and Shawnee State.

CU is 5-4 in five-set matches this season with three of its four losses coming against conference opponents.

The Lady Tigers had to rally from a 1-2 set deficit against Rio and tied the match with a 25-14 fourth-set win. But the momentum did not carry over to the deciding set as Rio pulled away for a 15-10 win. The set scores were: 19-25, 25-22, 25-21, 14-25 and 15-10.

Daiane Souza led CU against Rio with 14 kills and was supported by Rinata Aisena (13), Laura DeGear (11), Kelly Moyer (10), Haley Bechtel (5) and Kira Stewart (2). Souza also had three services aces in the match.

Jackie Schwieger (24) and Stewart (28) shared 52 of the team's 54 assists.

Audrey Sanders (12) and Caitlin Dresing (12) led CU in digs. Lexis Lloyd had eight and Schwieger and Bechtel seven each.

CU (21-8, 9-3 MSC) closed out the weekend with a sweep of Pikeville, 25-22, 25-14 and 25-8. Bechtel led CU against Pikeville with 12 kills and DeGear had 10. Sanders had four service aces to go along with eight digs. Dresing led the team with 14 digs, Stewart had eight, Bechtel seven and Lloyd six. Stewart was credited with 31 assists.

Veteran journalist addresses chamber

Cross talks about upcoming presidential election

Leslie Moore
lmoore@cknj.com

Pulitzer-prize winning journalist Al Cross recently spoke about the upcoming presidential election at the Chamber of Commerce's monthly luncheon.

While much of the election coverage has centered on predictions of undecided voters and the question of Obama's likability after his first debate appearance, according to Cross, there is an issue also deserving of our attention—the quest for facts.

"This debate about what facts are illustrates a fundamental problem that I think we have in our democracy," Cross said. "We no longer have a shared set of facts."

Cross, an associate professor in the School of Journalism and Telecommunications at the University of Kentucky, said politicians no longer face consequences for misleading voters, and that the American public has caught on. According to the national polls, he said, a disturbing percentage of people do not trust politicians.

This has led to a "proliferation" of media outlets that are more concerned about viewership than reporting the facts.

"When you are hungry for an audience, you give people what they want, not necessarily what they need," Cross said.

Cross referenced Neil Newhouse, an advisor to Mitt Romney, and his infamous comment that now haunts the Romney campaign, "We're not going to let our campaign be dictated by fact-checkers."

Cross said Newhouse's statement was an insult to journalists and the job they do. According to Cross, the market for opinion is increasing while the market for fact is decreasing, and this measures to a disastrous recipe for Congress.

"If we can't agree on what the facts are, how do we come together and make progress?" Cross said.

Cross also cited the media for often being "too corporate." He added that amplifying the mistakes of one person can lead to the media overlooking others who are not being truthful.

Cross

"I think those of us who are still in journalism in some fashion need to get up on our hind legs and defend our profession," Cross said. "But we don't do that because we don't want to get caught in the mix. We want to be the watchers, not the watched."

But in the new media environment, Cross said, the media is constantly being watched and they are the targets of much criticism. However, he stressed that journalists should hold themselves and others accountable for taking their responsibility seriously. He said journalists should be able to take constructive criticism.

At the time of Cross's speech, there was much disagreement over who won the first presidential debate.

"It's clear Romney won the debate," Cross said. "The president's likability has been his best asset, and he may have squandered it in that debate."

Cross said Obama's appearance was not good for his career, and was lacking in not only style, but substance. Although previously the general consensus seemed to be that Romney was the less likable candidate, Cross said that due to the number of people who are still unemployed, Obama too would have to make an effort to show more emotion and empathy in the next debate.

"President Obama has a cool detachment and I think that's good for presidential decision-making, but it doesn't really appeal to voters."

According to Cross, Obama has continued to hold a lead over Romney in the polls following the debate partly because of the issue of racism.

"Many people in this country are proud of the fact that we finally have a president that reflects the progress we have made in overcoming the issue that has confounded this country almost since the first settlers came in 1619," Cross said. "People are glad we're getting over race; they see Obama as an emblem. They're proud of him. They want him to succeed. They're willing to give him more of a break than they would Romney."

However, Cross doubted whether this would remain a strong enough influence over people's votes. In addition, Cross said that Romney may have finally crossed the threshold to acceptability, which could make the issue of race fade into the background.

In order to win the election, Cross said that ultimately, it is a question of which party will do a better job of bringing out its core supporters.

"Most of these 'undecideds' that you hear about in the polls aren't going to vote...and aren't really serious about voting," Cross said.

The polls targeting young people are showing that the enthusiasm from the 2008 election likely will not be carried over this November. However, Cross added that polls with the intent of assessing people's feelings are notoriously unreliable because they are based solely on self-analysis.

"We have a generation under 30 who have a lot of problems finding decent jobs because of the state of the economy," Cross said.

According to Cross, members from this age group who do vote will base their vote on who they blame more — Bush and the Congress that preceded Obama, or Obama and the current Congress.

Cross predicted that the 2012 election could have results similar to the 2000 presidential election, when Al Gore won the popular vote, but incumbent George Bush narrowly won the election by electoral vote. However, Cross said it would likely be reversed, with Romney winning the national popular vote and Obama winning the electoral vote.

No matter who wins the election, Cross said everyone who has any sense in Washington knows that balancing the budget must be the priority.

He said that some people want to completely eliminate certain programs and not raise taxes, but it simply will not work. Cross thinks that the party that gets its way in the end will likely depend on the "Conservative Democrats" in Congress.

"Conservative Democrats, enough of them, will eventually crack and there will be a compromise much more to the Republicans liking than the other way around."

Tim Horton Camp Kentahten to host November luncheon

Camp director Jacob Chewning will be guest speaker

Jacob Chewning, general manager of Tim Horton Camp Kentahten, will be the speaker at next month's Campbellsville/Taylor County Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The luncheon will be Thursday, Nov. 8, at the camp, which is located at 49 Kentahten Trail in Campbellsville.

Opened in 2001, this is the first Tim Horton Children's Foundation camp in the United States. The camp occupies 50 acres of waterfront property on Green River Lake, in the heart of Kentucky. Tim Horton Camp Kentahten hosts residential campers throughout the summer months and March Break. Schools, youth groups and other community organizations that meet the Foundation's selection criteria can also benefit from year-round programming.

Chewning graduated from Lindsey Wilson College with a degree in communications and will be discussing the advantages of investing in today's youth. He is a long-term staff member, and he has been with the Kentahten camp since it opened in 2001.

He began his career at the foundation as a counselor, progressed through various program roles through the years and was promoted to the role of program coordinator in 2006. Jacob left the Foundation at the end of August 2007 although he did not venture far. Working for a Tim Horton's restaurant owner, Chewning continued to be involved with the camp through volunteer initiatives such as work weekends and golf tournaments. In October 2008, Chewning returned to Kentahten in his current role of general manager where he became a key member of the camp's management team. Over the last 10 years, Chewning has developed strong relationships with campers, staff members, restaurant owners, corporate staff and other supporters within the community. The camp is excited for him to continue providing strong and consistent leadership to Kentahten in this new capacity, and continuing to build on the strong foundation established over the camp's first 10 years.

Chrissy Jennings is administration manager for Tim Horton Camp Kentahten. She first started with Kentahten during the summer of 2007 as a counselor. Since then she has continued to return in a variety of different roles in both the year round group program and summer camp. Her roles have included program coordinator and administrative office assistant during the summer seasons, and as a program facilitator year round during the fall and spring of 2009-2011.

From the very beginning Jennings has been a big part of the total team at Kentahten through staff training, camp events such as Derby and Work Weekend, programming, and facilitation of camper orientation meetings. She graduated with a business administration degree from University of Dayton.

Ghost Tour aims to educate

'If they're looking for spooky, they won't find it here.'

LESLIE MOORE
lmoore@cknj.com

Campbellsville residents have an opportunity to learn about the history of the community from local middle school students.

Students portraying historical figures such as Benoni Hotchkiss, Captain John R. Robinson and Mary Ann Shuttleworth will take guests on a "ghost tour" of Brookside Cemetery, where many of the founders of Campbellsville are buried.

Betty Jane Gorin-Smith, a local historian, said the students have been working hard to prepare for their roles and are really having fun getting into character.

"They're all costumed, they've got their parts ready and their props, and we have mothers who have made long dresses for the girls," Gorin-Smith said. "It's going to be so precious. The girls hair-dos look like they're from the 1800s."

Blacksmithing tools, vintage medical supplies, and even an old casket will help take guests on a journey back to the early 19th century.

"Many towns around here like Columbia and Glasgow are doing this, and I think it will be a great experience here, also," Gorin-Smith said.

In all there are 27 actors from both Campbellsville and Taylor County middle schools and other helpers and guides to lead guests through the cemetery.

Gorin-Smith said events such as this are important because many people have lived in Campbellsville their whole lives but might not know anything about the people who built the community.

Although it is a "ghost" tour, Gorin-Smith said it is intended to be educational and will be more historical than scary.

"If they're looking for spooky, they won't find it here," Gorin-Smith said.

The tour, co-sponsored by Hiestand House-Taylor County Museum and Brookside Cemetery, will be Saturday, from 4 to 7 p.m. The cost is $3 for students and $5 for adults. The proceeds will go toward the upkeep of Brookside Cemetery.

In the event of rain, the event will be rescheduled.

Taylor residents don't have to drive far for frights

Marion Haunted Forest still scaring region after 5 years

STEPHEN LEGA
Landmark News Service

Five years ago, the children of Eugene Hourigan were talking about what they could do for Halloween. They discussed making a haunted forest in the land around Eugene's home, and they eventually decided if they were going to do it, they might as well open it for the public, too.

"It's one time a year," said Joyce Hourigan Taylor. "We get together. We have fun. We scare each other."

The Haunted Forest is located near Gravel Switch on Danville Highway, near the Marion-Boyle County border on the Boyle County side. The entrance lies beyond a recently opened Amish store.

For the last few years, the Haunted Forest has been just that, a haunted forest, where visitors passed through the trees in the dark, not knowing what frights lie in waiting.

"It's all live action," said Ashley Miller, Taylor's daughter.

Unfortunately, having an outdoor attraction has also meant the weather plays a factor in whether or not people want to visit the Haunted Forest. When Eugene started building a 76-foot by 46-foot barn, his children thought they could take advantage of the indoor space.

At first, they thought they would only use about half of the barn.

"Every bit of it's been used," said Pat Hourigan, Eugene's daughter-in-law. "It's nice."

Nice, of course, being a relative term in this case. The niceties include a maze of rooms that will take visitors through a haunted nursery, a cemetery and at least one "surgery."

"I always get stuck being the person being mutilated," Miller said.

Visitors may even encounter a clown and a few other frightening creatures along the way. A few features that have been popular over the years have included the girl in the well from the movie "The Ring" as she emerges from a television set and a train tunnel.

But the attraction isn't all scary. Those visitors who survive the barn will also have a chance to go on a hayride, and they might even get to enjoy a roasted hot dog.

The Hourigans said they try to give parents a heads up if they think a particular part of their haunted attraction might be too intense for younger children, but parents have to decide for themselves.

Then again, kids are hardly the only people who get scared.

"The guys are just as afraid as the girls are," Taylor said. "They want to act like they're not, but they get pretty scared in there."

Taylor said most groups can get through in 15 minutes, sometimes faster if they're really frightened.

And Eugene joins in the fun, too, dressing up in costume. One year, he pretended to be a statue - at least until a group got close enough to startle.

"He's like a little kid in a candy store," Miller said.

For the entire Hourigan family, it's becoming a tradition, and they can't wait to huddle up after each group to talk about how their visitors reacted.

"We really have a lot of fun," Pat Hourigan said. "We get to spend time with each other. We enjoy it, and we get to meet a lot of people."

The Haunted Forest is $10 per person. It will be open from 6:30 to 11:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through the end of October and on Halloween night. It is located in Marion County on U.S. 68, mile marker one, about 6 miles west of Perryville.

10 Cards of Thanks

The family of Wanda Akin Estes would like to say an extensive Thank You to a loving community of family and friends for an outpouring of love and kindness, cards, visits and especially prayers over the past two years. We are so grateful to each and everyone of you. My mom was such a strong and courageous woman and our loss is truly Heaven's gain. Our lives will never be the same and we are going to miss her tremendously.

We would like to thank the James Graham Brown Cancer Center nurses and Dr. Lisanu for such love and kindness they showed my mom when she was taking her treatments.

Thank you to Campbellsville Apparel, my mom's friends and co-workers were there for her through her entire illness and we will never forget what you all did for her.

A special thank you to Golden Living-Greenhill Nursing Facility nurses and aides and other staff members for the extensive care they gave my mom while she was staying there, and to Hosparus for helping her during the final days of her life. Words cannot express how grateful we are to all of you. A special thank you to Robbyn Jewell for not only being Mom's nurse practitioner but a friend as well.

Thank you to Foster-Toler-Curry Funeral Home and Brenda's Flowers for the planning and conducting of her service. You all did such a wonderful job.

To Dr. Gary Ervin for presenting such a beautiful service. We want to say thank you to the members of Bethlehem Baptist Church for preparing such a wonderful meal. Our hearts are forever grateful. May God richly bless each of you and we ask that you continue to keep us in your prayers daily as we move forward with our lives.

With love,
Jerry, Masbonda, Robert and the Estes Family

POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

The Taylor County Public Library seeks an energetic, creative, and outgoing Youth Services Librarian.
The Youth Services Librarian must be an innovative individual that has a genuine love of reading and for children and teens. This individual will work with staff to enhance the children's and Young Adult services through planning, conducting, and advocating services that meet the needs of the young people in this community.

This is a full time 40 hour per week position. Working some evenings and/or Saturdays is required.

Essential Functions and Responsibilities:
- Develop and implement a variety of programs and activities including story hour, library tours, summer reading, and teen programs
- Create displays and bulletin boards to enhance the Library collection to promote reading
- Demonstrate creativity through a variety of story hour programs and storytelling techniques
- Create Junior Reading Programs such as book club, activities for teens, etc.
- Maintain an awareness of new and popular literature for children and teens, select materials for the Children's, Jr, and Teen collection as needed
- Promote library events and programs for youth by visiting local schools and community organization.

Education and Experience
Preferred candidates have a MS in Library and Information Science, School Media, or a related field, demonstrated ability to work with children and teens, experience planning a variety of programs for young people, understanding of Story Telling technique, and early literacy principles. Public library experience is preferred.

Working Environment and Physical Requirements:
- Work is performed in a library environment and involves regular contact with the public.
- Subject to sitting and standing for extended periods of time, walking, bending, reaching, climbing ladders/stepstools, and lifting of objects weighing up to 30-35 pounds.
- Must be able to lift and carry library materials and push/pull loaded carts.

Compensation
Competitive salary, paid vacation, holidays, and sick leave, health insurance, and participation in Kentucky State Retirement System.

To apply
Please send letter of application, resume, and contact information for 3 professional references to Taylor County Public Library, YS Librarian Search, 205 N Columbia, Campbellsville, KY 42718 or by email to julia@taylorcountypubliclibrary.org. Applications must be received by November 16, 2012.

Chapter 6

Out and about

For the second time in my life I had fallen off a horse. Granted, the first time was the horse at the supermarket, but falling off Chester hurt even more. I don't know what I was more upset over — falling off Chester or not getting a picture of the moose.

"It was an elk, Woody, not a moose," Pete said, correcting me when I told him the story. "Elk are prevalent in Kentucky's forests. When you went to grab the camera you lost your balance and fell off. The thump you heard was your helmet hitting the ground."

"Thank goodness for the helmet," I said, happy that Pete had made me wear one.

"Glad to know you're OK," he said. "Sometimes photographing wildlife can hurt them unintentionally. Most animals get spooked when a human approaches them. Sometimes it causes the animal to flee or attack. Please remember that next time."

We finished the trail ride and thanked Pete for all his help.

"I hope we can come back soon to ride," I said to Pete as we were leaving.

"We would love to have you back," Pete responded, "but Kentucky is horse country. There are places all over the state to go horseback riding. Go to Getoutky.com to find a list." I wrote down the website, excited about the possibility to go horseback riding again.

After sleeping under the stars and eating a healthy breakfast of granola and fresh strawberries, we opened up our next Rx card from Doc Albert. Dad asked me to read the card. I cleared my throat and read loudly.

"While you could find countless activities in the Daniel Boone National Forest and Eastern Kentucky area, it's time to move to another region. Dad: Drive north on Highway 11, then go left on Highway 9 for 42 miles. Then you'll see an intersection. Your new trainer will meet you. Pups: Use the brochures I've included and make a list of all the activities you can do in Kentucky. Include where the activities are located."

As Dad drove and Mom rode shotgun, Chloe and I read the Kentucky brochures. We were amazed to find out some interesting facts about the Bluegrass.

"Listen," Chloe said, grabbing everyone's attention. "This brochure says Kentucky has 39,732 square miles of land with commercial forest land occupying 12.7 million acres; has more miles of running water than any other state except Alaska, and 1,100 miles are used for commercial transportation. And Kentucky has 52 state parks, including 24 recreation state parks, 17 Kentucky resort parks (more than any other state) and 11 historic state parks."

"With all of that, there is no excuse for us not to exercise while we enjoy the state," Mom said, looking at us from the front seat.

"Unfortunately, it sounds like we need exercise," Chloe offered. "Kentucky ranks sixth in the nation for having the most obese residents, second for losing our teeth, and it has a high rate of cancer deaths and more smokers than any other state."

I hadn't wanted to change my eating habits and exercise more, but that information convinced me it was necessary — not only for me but for my state. I browsed the pages of "Kentucky's Guide to Unbridled Adventure." There were pages of exciting things to do. I rambled off a long list of activities we could do and never leave Kentucky: "skydiving, mountain biking, canoeing, kayaking, caving, rock climbing, zip-lining, water skiing, sailing, scuba diving, fishing, shooting, archery."

"We can do all of that in Kentucky?" Mom asked, stopping me before I finished.

"Yes, ma'am," I answered, excited at all our state offered. Chloe and I counted the listings in the book. There were 358 places in Kentucky where we could participate in various activities. "Mom, can you believe there are 58 places we could canoe or kayak in Kentucky?" We were still counting the places where we could find adventure when Dad said, "We're here."

Uh-oh! I wiped my eyes, shut them and opened them again to make sure I was seeing correctly. I had obviously read the Rx card wrong. Talk about being in a pickle!

34.2638 ACRES SELLING AS A WHOLE
21.8 ACRES OF CROP LAND
BALANCE IS WOODED WITH SOME MARKETABLE TIMBER
BRICK RANCH HOUSE - DETACHED GARAGE - BARN
REAL ESTATE SELLS AT 10:00 A.M. SHARP!

REAL ESTATE: 34.2638 acres selling by a 2000 survey with over 1,400' of blacktop road frontage on Wooleyville Road. The land lays level to gently rolling with open crop land and woodland with some marketable timber. The ASCS office shows the farm with 21.8 acres of crop land and a 3.2 acre corn base. For 2012 all of the crop land was planted in tobacco and corn. IMPROVEMENTS: A brick ranch house containing 2 bedrooms, a den that could be converted to a third bedroom, living room, dining room, kitchen, bath, and an unfinished basement. The house has electric ceiling cable heat, window air conditioner, and public water. Other improvements consist of a detached garage approximately 24' X 26' with concrete floor and a barn approximately 57' X 48'. SUPER LOCATION! PEACEFUL AND QUIET! INSPECTION: Land can be viewed daily at your convenience. The auctioneers will show the house anytime by appointment. Call 465-7051. Your inspection invited and appreciated. AUCTIONEER'S NOTE: It is seldom that you have the opportunity to purchase a baby farm as a whole. If you are in the market for a home place with a few acres, a quiet and peaceful community not too far from town, looking to invest in land, or looking to expand your farming operation, then we have just what you are looking for. Be sure to look this property over before auction day, make any arrangements or inspections necessary and come to the auction prepared to Bid & Buy, Saturday, October 27 at 10:00 A.M. We'll see you there! John and JohnWayne Kessler

FARM EQUIPMENT: IH 999 haybine, NH 256 rake, 3 pt. bale mover, and wagon. PERSONAL PROPERTY: FURNITURE: 4 piece bedroom suite (bed, large dresser, chest, and night stand), 3 piece bedroom suite, night stand, book cases, 2 desks, table with 4 chairs, china cabinet, chest, day bed, couch and chair, end tables, stereo, arm chairs, magazine rack, Sanyo TV (like new), entertainment center, 2 cabinets, quilt rack, baby crib, tables, and other miscellaneous items. HOUSEHOLD: pots and pans, cooking utensils, kerosene lamps, books, figurines, lamps, pictures, picture frames, toaster oven, Pyrex, and other miscellaneous items too numerous to mention. APPLIANCES: GE refrigerator, Brown range, Frigidaire dishwasher, and a washer and dryer. MISCELLANEOUS: metal handicap ramp and approximately 4 ricks of dry firewood.

TERMS: REAL ESTATE: 10% of purchase price day of auction (a personal check with ID, cash, or cashier check), along with the signing of a Real Estate Sales and Purchase Contract and Lead Based Paint Waiver. The balance due with delivery of deed on or before November 27, 2012. PERSONAL PROPERTY: Cash or good check with proper ID, or Visa/Master Card day of auction. NOTE: A 10% Buyers Premium will be added to all winning bids to determine the final sales and purchase price. ALL BUYERS NOT KNOWN BY KESSLER AUCTION & REALTY CO. MUST HAVE A BANK LETTER OF GUARANTEE ADDRESSED TO KESSLER AUCTION & REALTY CO. OR CERTIFIED FUNDS. NOTICE: Any announcement made by the auctioneer from the auction block on the day of sale will take precedence over any printed material or oral statement. In an auction sale, all property is sold As Is, Where Is with NO warranty expressed or implied by the sellers or auction company. The information in this ad is believed to be correct but is not guaranteed. It is the responsibility of each potential bidder to make their own Inspections or investigations and to bid on their judgment of value. The real estate is available daily by appointment with the Auction Company prior to the auction to make or have made on your behalf any inspections you choose including lead based paint.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Six time-saving kitchen tools

Dramatically reduce your workload

Our lives are busier today than ever before. Trying to balance the demands of work and home life is no easy feat. At home, day-to-day chores like cooking and cleaning easily chip away at precious time that could be better spent on a little rest and relaxation. If you're looking to take back some of your time at home, the kitchen is a great place to start. With a few simple tools, you can dramatically reduce your workload, making more time for the things that really matter.

1. Hands-free helper

Imagine the convenience of having a kitchen faucet that can sense what you're trying to accomplish, and with a simple wave of the hand, immediately responds to your needs. The new Moen Arbor pull-down kitchen faucet with MotionSense utilizes advanced sensors to detect a user's movement in two sensing zones, immediately setting water flow in motion. Simply place an object – like a cup or your hand – near the base of the faucet or wave your hand above the faucet to turn the water on and off automatically. You can also adjust the faucet's temperature and flow the traditional way, using its convenient side handle. With MotionSense, tasks like washing dishes, filling a glass of water and preparing the evening meal can become quicker and more efficient. It's like having a second set of hands in the kitchen – perfect for when your hands are too full or too dirty to turn on the faucet.

2. Futuristic fridge

Until recently, the most unique tool for the outside of the fridge was the ice maker. Although still a useful item, some manufacturers have far surpassed this technology with today's more high-tech models. The Samsung 30 cubic foot Side by Side LCD Refrigerator with apps features a WiFi-enabled 8-inch LCD touch screen, giving access to popular apps like Pandora, Epicurious, Google Calendar and the brand new Grocery Manager app, which tracks expiration dates on perishables. Whether you're looking for a recipe, updating your calendar or listening to music, you can do it all from your refrigerator door.

3. Pressure reliever

It's 5 p.m., your family is hungry and you have no idea what you're going to feed them. An electric pressure cooker can help ease the pressure of a "what-do-I-do-for-dinner" situation, and requires less monitoring than a stovetop pressure cooker. These miracle machines use a moist, high-temperature environment to cook food three times faster than conventional methods. Plus, many models have the added bonus of electronic features, such as a programmable timer and the ability to brown, simmer or saute.

4. Programmed for success

Make meals more easily with the Frigidaire Professional 30-inch Slide-In Induction Hybrid Range. This smart stove features a delay start option, so you can set your oven to begin cooking on your schedule. For easy prep the day before, the range can be programmed from one to 24 hours in advance. Other innovative features include one-touch settings, allowing you to cook family favorites like chicken nuggets and pizza with the touch of a button.

5. Reliable robot

Of all the possible kitchen floor cleaning tools, robotic floor cleaners are truly the best time savers. Mops and brooms require some time and muscle on your part to do their job, but today's robotic floor cleaners simply require a minute to program. These clever little robots do it all - from vacuuming to scrubbing - or even sanitizing.

6. Reduce refills

Dishwashers have already made our lives easier, but new models take cleaning to the next level. These handy kitchen cleaning tools are becoming more efficient and quieter than ever before. Today's machines can hold enough liquid dishwasher detergent for several months of cycles and automatically dispense the right amount each time, based on water hardness and soil levels. Since you can also program your dishwasher to start on its own, the only thing you have to worry about when it comes to the dishes is whose turn it is to put them away.

Although you may not be able to add more hours to your day, you can easily add more time-saving tools to your life. When you spend less time in the kitchen, who knows what kinds of feats you can accomplish throughout the rest of your house – and the rest of your life.

Bathroom remodeling ideas

From small to total overhaul

Ready to give your bathroom a facelift, but can't decide what changes to make? From tubs to toilets to tile, the sky is the limit when it comes to bathroom renovations, even if budget is not.

Whether you are planning some small do-it-yourself changes, or a major overhaul, here are some fresh ideas for bathroom remodeling that will help you build the smart, stylish, and functional bathroom of your dreams.

Start living large

Feeling crowded in a small bathroom? For a small-budget fix-up, replace your old space-wasting vanity with a smart open-design style that maximizes storage, while visually opening up the room. If your project is major and you are opening the walls, replace your floor-mounted toilet in favor of a wall-mounted toilet, such as Porcher Solutions Dual Flush toilet, which stows the water tank behind the wall. The Porcher Solutions toilet is water-wise, as well as space-savvy, and the Ever-Clean surface inhibits the growth of stain and odor causing bacteria, mold and mildew on the surface.

Focus on your faucet

If you have a small budget, making a simple change like updating a bathroom faucet and accessories can still have a dramatic impact on the style of the room. Faucets with the Speed Connect drain can be installed in minutes, and reflect any decor choice, from traditional to minimalist in popular finishes such as oil-rubbed bronze and polished chrome. Change light fixtures and drawer pulls to match your faucet, splurge on some updated colors for towels and rugs and you have a beautiful before-and-after makeover of your very own.

Think accessible

A bathroom remodel is a great time to invest in fixtures that will allow you and your loved ones to remain independent in your home through illness, aging or other unforeseen events. The best products also work great and feel terrific in the here and now. A taller, Right Height toilet is a luxurious comfort. If you rarely use your bathtub, it can be easily replaced with an acrylic seated-safety shower unit that simply slides into your existing tub recess. Optional acrylic surrounds are easy to install and easy to keep clean, while the integral seat provides a safe option for both bathing and shaving.

This water-saving Porcher Solutions dual flush toilet allows the choice of 1.6 or 0.8 gallons per flush, while featuring wall-mounted installation that stores the water tank behind the wall, opening up valuable bathroom floor space.

Go green to save green

The cost of water will be rising, so get ahead of the curve by choosing toilets, faucets and showerheads that carry the EPA's WaterSense certification label. The label assures that you won't be sacrificing performance. Visit www.responsiblebathroom.com for a wide range of WaterSense-certified products and a handy calculator so you can watch your water, and money, savings add up.

American Standard offers the perfect solution for creating an accessible bathroom at home with this walk-in seated shower. Its low 3-inch threshold, recessed front for ease in standing or sitting, wide, contoured seating, and built-in wrap-around grab bar provide confidence and safety to all family members while enjoying a pleasant shower experience.

A 2010 DODGE DAKOTA BIG HORN PICK UP TRUCK W/ ONLY 9,251 MILES!

THIS SATURDAY! THIS SATURDAY!

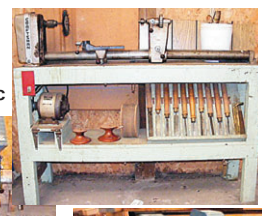

2498 CAMPBELLSVILLE ROAD - HODGENVILLE, KENTUCKY
www.thelancasteragency.com

The Lancaster Agency, Inc. has been commissioned by the Estate of Anderson Caswell to sell a great lineup of wood working equipment, power tools, hand tools, a tractor, lawn & garden equipment, antiques, and personal property...Plus a 2010 Dodge Dakota Big Horn Pickup Truck at ABSOLUTE AUCTION on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27th, 2012 @ 10:30 A.M!!!

THE VEHICLE
A 2010 Dodge Dakota Big Horn V-6 Pickup Truck with only 9,251 miles! (VIN: 1D7CE3BK4AS177340)
(We like to joke that it was driven by a little old man to church and back)!
This truck was purchased by Mr. Caswell on February 17, 2010 and has been gently used ever since.
This truck was willed to his son, Tom Caswell. As fate would have it, Tom purchased a truck not long before his father passed away and did not have a need for this 2010 Dodge Dakota Big Horn Pick Up Truck.
That gives you the opportunity to purchase this outstanding vehicle at ABSOLUTE AUCTION!!!

THE WOOD WORKING EQUIPMENT
Rockwell Drill Press (w/ Accessories) ; Craftsman Turning Lathe ; Craftsman Radial Arm Saw ; Craftsman Dado Cutter Set ; Craftsman Jointer ; Craftsman Table Saw ; Craftsman Polisher/Buffer ; Sears Bench Grinder ; Sears Belt/Disc Sander (w/ Several Replacement Belts & Discs) ; B&D Router & Table ; Delta Band Saw (w/ Assorted Blades & Blade Splicer) ; Charge Air Pro Air Compressor ; 15" Scroll Saw ; 1" Belt Sander

AUCTIONEER'S NOTE
Anyone who knew Anderson Caswell knows the reputation he had as a Master Craftsman... They say you can tell a working man by the tools he buys...And for Mr. Caswell it was nothing but the best! He spent most of his life building exquisite cabinetry and working with wood... And now you have the opportunity to buy these tools of the trade – Plus a 2010 Dodge Dakota Pick Up Truck and much more at ABSOLUTE AUCTION with No Reserves or Minimums!

DIRECTIONS
The auction will be conducted in the back yard of the former Caswell home located right off the main drag at 2498 Campbellsville Road (Highway 210) just a couple of miles southeast of downtown Hodgenville.... Just look for the yellow & red auction sign!

Simple home updates envy

Make your neighbors green with envy

Whether or not we want to admit it, we all want our home to look its best and be the envy of the neighborhood. But do you think that keeping up with the Joneses comes with a big price tag? Think again. With a little elbow grease and creativity, your property can be the talk of the town.

Making a good first impression

Your home can't look great if you can't see it, so updating outdoor lighting is a great first step to achieving the best-looking house on the block. Chances are your exterior porch lights or street lamp may be rusty or faded. Luckily, you can bring new life to your lighting with a single can of spray paint. New Krylon Dual Paint and Primer is a one-step solution to easily transform any light fixture. The unique formula primes the surface for adhesion, durability and coverage, while delivering a high-quality finish. Best of all, Dual is now available in specialty finishes, such as hammered and metallic, that are perfect for adding an extra dose of style.

Still looking for more illumination? Adding decorative lanterns to walkways or porches is an easy and inexpensive way to add charm and light. You can often find these pieces at yard sales, thrift stores or dollar stores and then simply paint them in a matching hammered or metallic finish for a bright and stylish look.

Quick color

The front door is a focal point of your home - especially with the added lighting you've updated - so be sure that your doors and shutters are a vivid shade. If yours have been dulled by years of sun and weather, it's time to update with paint. For metal doors and shutters, you can use a variety of spray or bucket paints in your favorite hue. However, for plastic shutters, Krylon Fusion for Plastic is the ideal choice since it bonds to plastic without the need for priming or sanding.

A tidy and neat yard

No matter what the size of your front yard, a well manicured lawn is important to boosting your curb appeal. Simple one-weekend tasks like edging, trimming bushes and removing unsightly weeds can make a huge difference without a lot of work or cost. To keep your efforts looking great, spray weed killer to maintain a polished look for the rest of the season. After the initial grooming, add new mulch and flowers in beds or in brightly painted pots for an extra pop of color and style.

Fill in the blanks

The final task to a great looking home that will have your neighbors lusting, is to repair or replace any elements that have deteriorated over time. Walk around the perimeter of your home to check for cracks in bricks or concrete, stains on the driveway or sidewalks, and loose shutters or downspouts. Sprucing up these basics will not only make a big difference to the exterior appearance, but protect your home from damages in the future.

Now, with all the home decorating and hard work complete, your neighbors will be green with envy when looking at your beautiful home and will be trying to keep up with you.
